

JOHNSON IS NOMINATED FOR GOVERNOR AT STATE PRIMARY.

Big Plurality Over Curry Indicated.

Returns at Midnight Show Anderson or Stanton the Third.

Kent and McKinlay Locked in Very Close Fight for Congress.

Defeat of Grove L. Johnson for the Legislature Apparent.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Fitted against old-guard Republicanism and the strongest personal political machine the State has ever known, "insurgency," the newest issue in Republican politics, won a sweeping victory in California today at the first direct primary election held under the act passed by the last Legislature.

From the returns received up to midnight it was certain that Hiram W. Johnson, insurgent Republican, had been nominated by his party for Governor. The indications are that his plurality over Charles F. Curry will be large. Curry's main strength lay in this city, but it is now almost certain that Curry will go out of the city with less than 2000 plurality. Johnson's plurality in the South will outweigh this by many thousands.

The most complete figures obtainable at midnight showed that Alden Anderson, the standard bearer of the Republican organization, which has ruled for years in this State, came out of the contest a poor third.

Totals from 549 precincts throughout the State gave Johnson 15,375; Curry, 11,914; Anderson, 5705.

These figures, from 251 precincts of the State, exclusive of San Francisco, gave the other two Republican contestants—Stanton, 2187; Ellery, 145.

In line with Johnson's victory in the close fight in the Second Congressional District, where William D. McKim, incumbent, lost to Duncan McKinlay, several times his party's choice for the post in Washington. For many hours the battle between Kent and McKinlay was carried on with but a half dozen votes between them. At midnight, however, a small margin and his adherents were claiming his nomination, and that another dead had been made in the battle-scarred field of the State.

Of his triumph, Johnson said this to his tonight.

"This fight has been made on progressive lines and it is a clearly-defined insurgent victory. We entered this fight with a serious purpose and with one great issue, which we presented to the people of California for their determination. They have declared in favor of taking back their government which for more than a quarter of a century has been the asset and chattel of the Southern Pacific political bureau.

"We have taken our Republicanism from the brave insurgents of the East, who have fought a great fight and fought the civic conscience of the Nation. This is the first time that the people of the State have had the opportunity to choose for themselves without the intervention of political bosses, and they have justified the belief constantly expressed throughout our campaign that the people will invariably decide for the right when the issue is squarely presented to them.

"Insurgency is victorious in California."

JOHNSON'S FATHER LOSER.

Indications are that Grove L. Johnson, father of Hiram Johnson, is defeated for re-nomination in the Legislature from Sacramento by Charles L. Ellis. Johnson has been in the Legislature for the last twelve years, and previous to that time served in Congress and both branches of the Legislature.

Tomorrow Hiram Johnson and Theodore Bell, the Democratic nominee, will begin the fight for the Governor's chair. In striking contrast to the bitter struggle among the Republicans, the Democratic warriors have divided through the pre-primary fight with all their interest centered on what their political rivals were doing. They went to the polls as a harmonious body, victims of the result. Bell said to-night.

"I have defined my position many times in unequivocal language on all public questions in this State. I have never receded from that position. The Pacific Pacific political bureau will not be permitted to dominate our political affairs; and, if I am elected Governor, the Southern Pacific will receive only the same equal consideration that is accorded to other business interests. More, nothing less. I shall administer the affairs of the State with the single object of insuring to all the people a perfectly free deal.

"Here in California we are destined to be the great asset of all commonwealths. It will be my constant endeavor to encourage the spirit of good will and cooperation which at all times governs the just relations and common efforts of capital and labor. I shall do my utmost to take all our public institutions out of politics, and I shall do my utmost to take all our public appointments to be guided by the qualifications of honesty, efficiency and humanity."

McLACHLAN IN DOUBT.

Returns from the South late tonight indicated another insurgent victory

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

Theodore Bell for Governor, Woolwine for District Attorney and all the Democratic candidates were nominated without opposition.

among the Republicans of the Seventh Congressional District. Forty-nine precincts out of a total of 230 in Los Angeles gave Stephens, insurgent, 2564; McLachlan, regular and incumbent, 1814.

For the other offices returns are very scattering. They would indicate that Johnson has carried to victory the majority of his ticket; but an estimate of the vote is impossible. For Lieutenant-Governor Albert J. Wallace seems to have a strong lead, and the only conclusion to be drawn from the meager figures on the advisory vote for United States Senator is that John D. Works has been nominated.

For Attorney-General, Frank McGowan has run a strong race against U. S. Webb, the incumbent, but Webb's nomination is indicated.

For many offices there are no figures at hand. As the Democrats had no contests except in the Fourth Congressional District, their ticket will appear on the election ballots as it did in the primaries. In the Fourth District, Julius Kahn, the Republican incumbent, was without opposition, while E. P. Troy and Arthur MacArthur struggled for Democratic nomination. No figures on the outcome are at hand.

From the slowness with which returns are coming in it is safe to say that several days will be required to determine the outcome of the legislative fights. No figures on any but the gubernatorial race, some of the Congressional contests and other offices in a haphazard manner have been received from many parts of the State.

PAPAL NUNCIO VISITS SPAIN'S QUEEN MOTHER.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SAN SEBASTIAN, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The Papal Nuncio's visit to Queen Maria Christina at Miramar Palace this afternoon called forth much comment. Mr. Vigo called first on Señor Garcia y Prieto, and the Minister of Foreign Affairs accompanied him to Miramar. Yesterday the Queen mother received the Bishop of Guipuzcoa in audience.

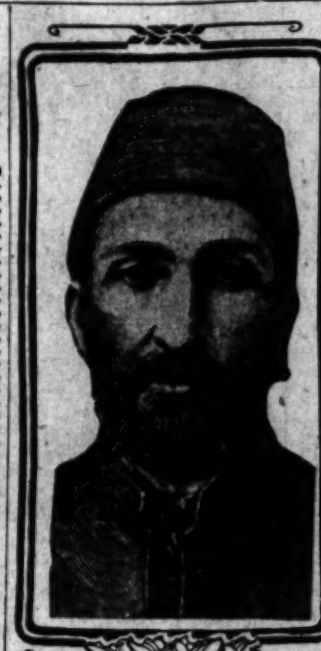

Señor Prieto, on leaving the palace, told the newspaper correspondents that the Papal Nuncio's visit to the Queen mother was merely a social one, but, in spite of this assertion and the denials issued from the Vatican, and Madrid as to any change in the situation, the public insists on regarding these visits as indications of a friendly solution of the situation at hand.

When Queen Maria Christina received the Nuncio, she was accompanied by Señores Canalejas and Sagasta. The President of the Council replied that the government advised her to receive the Nuncio.

The Catholic juntas of Vizcaya, Guipuzcoa, Ataya and Navarra previously met today at Zumarraga to discuss their campaign against the government. They received many addresses from the country districts and decided to continue their campaign energetically. These four juntas have been indicted for libel on the Premier. A very Catholic propaganda continues. The sermons on the Day of Assumption in the country churches contain violent attacks on the government.

The Liberal has confirmed the rumor prevailing in Spanish circles that Don Jaime's partisans have endeavored to obtain money in Paris, Berlin and Brussels in order to bring about a revolution in Spain. The editor of the Barcelona edition of the Liberal says the Jaimeists have promised great concessions but that their efforts have been vain.

Vasques Mella, at one time Don Jaime's secretary, who undertook the negotiation, is convinced that if Don Jaime is to ascend the throne by means of a revolution his partisans in Spain must rely on their own resources.

ABDUL HAMID HAS VANISHED.

WHERE?

FORMER SULTAN IS NO LONGER AT VILLA ALTATINI.

Recent Visitor in Salonica, a Noted Writer in England, Declares That, Contrary to General Belief, Deposed Sultan Supposed to Have Been Deported After Incarceration.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Where is Sultan Abdul Hamid? Most people would positively reply: "In Salonica."

But Mrs. Archibald Little, a noted writer who recently visited that city, tells in the Westminster Gazette many curious facts strongly pointing to the belief that he has disappeared from the Villa Altatini there, in which he was incarcerated after his deposition. During a visit to friends in an adjoining villa, Mrs. Little was surprised to find it was the universal conviction that Abdul had been deported.

On pursuing her inquiries, she discovered that, though sentries were posted as formerly, neither window nor blinds were ever raised and that no shop people ever called, though they came in numbers when the ex-Sultan first arrived. No lights were visible at night, whereas there used to be quite a grand illumination. The houses presented all the appearance of being deserted.

FEAR ANARCHIST PLOT.

Reds Reported to Have Left Argentina in Connection With King's Visit to Montenegro.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

ROME, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While official denial is made of the rumor that an anarchist plot to be executed on the occasion of King Victor Emmanuel's visit to Montenegro has been discovered, the fact that anarchists have left Argentina for an unknown destination causes apprehension.

Urgent orders have been given to the police to investigate all arrivals from abroad, and the posts on the frontier have been strongly reinforced. All trains are subjected to rigorous visits of inspection.

It is feared, however, that the fact that some other European country will pass them to Italy.

The police of Argentina and Italy are in constant communication.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Directors of the Standard Oil Company declared today a regular quarterly dividend of $4 a share on its one million shares. John D. Rockefeller's portion of this plum was $1,620,000.

The first quarter this year paid $15 a share, the second a share going to the president, a combination which makes a total of $30 a share so far this season. The Standard Oil Company has given out dividends amounting to $20,000,000, or almost one-third of its outstanding capital.

Canadian Woman Tells of Childhood Prank Barefoot in Snow, on Her 102nd Birthday.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

SARATOGA (N. Y.), Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "I feel that I have lived too long," was the remark of Mrs. Margaret Van Rensselaer, who celebrated her one hundred and second birthday today. "I never thought I could live so long," she said. "I was born in Montreal, Can., and when a little girl I can remember that there were no houses in sight and only trees every way you looked. I remember going barefoot over the snow-covered ground. I guess that's what makes me so tough now."

Mrs. Van Rensselaer's father was 110 years old when he died and her mother reached 99.

Connecticut Militiaman Meets Affinity, on Way to Man-o-uvers, via Biscuit.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

DERRY (Ct.), Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Walter H. Osborne of Meriden went to the war maneuvers last summer as a member of Co. I of the Connecticut National Guard and, as the train was passing through Meriden, Conn., he wrote his name and address on a piece of hard-tack and tossed it from the car window.

A pretty girl, who was at the station to cheer the soldiers on their way to the Boston front, spied the army tidbit when it struck the ground. She picked it up. The young woman sent a postal card to the address given. Yesterday they walked together down the aisle of a Brockton church and said, "I will."

CHEINESE ELECT AT MONTREAL.

YELLOWBILLS CHOOSE MERCHANT TO REPRESENT THEM.

First Political Event of Its Kind, Outside of Flowery Kingdom, Marks Dawn of New Epoch—Election Will Be Held in British Columbia—Hope for Constitution.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

OTTAWA (Ont.), Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The first Chinese political election ever held outside of China, has just occurred at Montreal, when 210 Chinese voters were cast representing Celestials of Eastern Canada. As a result, Lee Mon Hoo, a merchant of Montreal, and Hun Quam, a merchant of Ottawa, were elected to represent the Orientals at the provincial assembly at Kwan Tung, China. A similar election will be held for British Columbia, for the northwestern Chinese.

Dr. Kung, Chinese Consul-General in Canada, presided at the voting at Montreal. This marks an epoch in the history of the Chinese Empire, meaning the nucleus of a constitutional government, in which Chinese all over the world are represented. Similar elections will be held in the United States and other countries to which Chinese have migrated.

Dr. Kung says: "China has made advances regarding constitutional government and the late Emperor Dowager said the only hope of the future of her empire lay in the granting of a constitution."

He gave full details regarding the new parliament, its constitution and what it will do.

FIRE THREATENS PARK HOTEL.

Yellowstone Park Blaze Soldiers Report Extinguished, Breaks Out Again in Forest.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

LIVINGSTON (Mont.), Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Word was received from the remotest portion of Yellowstone Park this morning that the Lake Hotel, one of the beautiful large hotels of the Park Transportation Company, is threatened by forest fire. The hotel was completed two years ago at a cost of $100,000, and is one of the finest structures devoted to tourists in the park. It is located 10 miles from the railroad at the point farthest distant reached by tourists. Troops have been rushed from Fort Yellowstone to the scene.

Yesterday troops returned to headquarters reporting that the fire in the park had been extinguished. During the night another fire, fanned by strong wind, broke out on Flat Mountain and this was this morning sweeping down on the hotel. If the wind continues nothing can save the hotel. This fire has caused another exodus of guests and hundreds of head of antelope, deer and elk are fleeing to the low country about Yellowstone Lake.

BIG SCHEME.

PLAN TRUST CONTROL OF WORLD'S COPPER.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

LONDON, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] There was a sharp rise in copper shares this afternoon, chiefly based on published reports that John D. Ryan and Samuel Untermyer had, between them, as a result of recent conferences at the Hotel Ritz, put the finishing touches to the plans to restrict the copper output which had been in formation for some time past.

Whether or not it has been found possible to arrange a combination which will not come into conflict with the Sherman anti-trust law is another question.

Those who took part in the conference have refused to make any statement at the time being, but it is stated that the combination will be an accomplished fact before many months are over.

According to one estimate, the capital will be $200,000,000. Enormous as this sum is, leaders of the copper market of this country consider that it will be entirely inadequate, without some further financial arrangement to control the copper output of America. It represents only the value, at present prices, of one year's production in the United States.

The need for some restriction of output is recognized. The success of the negotiation would mean that the American trust would control for the time being, at any rate, the copper market of the world.

The United States produces roughly three-fourths of the world's annual supply, which aggregates about 500,000 tons.

CHEATING JUSTICE.

Crooked Work in Retrial of Browne.

Chicago Judge Dismisses Every Venireman on Fourth Panel.

Nearly Every Man Declares He Was "Approached" by Some One.

Sensational Disclosures Are Made by Prospective Jurors.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Declaring that practically all of them had been "approached" in connection with the retrial of Lee O'Neill Browne, Judge Kersten, dismissed today a panel of seventy-five veniremen who had been subpoenaed in the work of selecting a jury. Judge Kersten pronounced the situation "deplorable."

The veniremen were immediately taken to the office of State Attorney Wayman, where Judge Kersten asked each man by name if he had been called upon by any one in connection with his possible services as a juror. Nearly all answered the affirmative. They were instructed to report in court tomorrow for further investigation.

Mr. Wayman made the assertion in court that he could prove by a detective employed by him that the latter had systematically sought out every prospective venireman, either by direct approach or through families or households.

P. O'Donnell, counsel for Browne, asserted that the veniremen had been seen by agents of a third interest, neither defense nor prosecution, interested for political reasons, in the downfall of Browne.

The first stir in this development of the case occurred during the forenoon session, when Elmer Wennerberg, a venireman, said that he had been called into the office of one Dr. Kaffey. While Wennerberg did not go into details, his intimations caused Judge Kersten to order the production of the physician in court.

The situation reached a crisis later when Swan Dahlberg, another member of the panel, stated that he had been "seen" by some agent whose real purpose he did not know. Dahlberg said this agent told him, after questioning him closely as to his belief as to the guilt or innocence of Browne, that he need not answer the subpoena.

FOLLOWS FOUR ADVICE.

Dahlberg acted upon this advice and in consequence was brought before the court today to explain why he should not be adjudged in contempt of court. There he told his story.

Judge Kersten leaned over his desk and said solemnly:

"The court wants to know if this is going to be fair trial or a travesty upon justice. The situation has reached a point where an investigation is necessary. I don't want to blame either the State or the defense, but some one is doing crooked work and I am loathe to go on with the case. When a juror is subpoenaed a one has a right to talk to him. As it is, probably every man on this jury has been approached."

At this period Attorney O'Donnell made his accusation against some "third party," at which Mr. Wayman jumped to his feet.

"I can prove that the defense has been systematically calling on all veniremen," he said.

"Man after man has been excused from service on this jury and has been taken to my office, where they told me they had been approached, directly or through members of their households."

One venireman, whose name was not disclosed, created a further sensation when the panel had been taken to the State Attorney's office. There was a hurried call for a stenographer. A member of Mr. Wayman's staff said the venireman had been asked by an agent to "stick it out for Browne till hell froze over."

A sixth panel, which was ordered to report tomorrow, will be cautioned, and it is found that any investigators have been talking to them this panel also will be dismissed.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
MEDFORD (Or.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] John Harper, employed by the Rogue River Electric Company, was today carried over the immense dam at Gold Ray, but was uninjured. The dam is the largest in Southern Oregon and Harper's escape was almost a miracle. Harper was assisting in installing a bulkhead, when he slipped and a moment later shot into the whirlpool below. For nearly the entire length of the foot of the dam sharp, jagged rocks rise, and it was among these that the man was dashed. He struck a small stretch of open water and was not scratched.

TACOMA (Wash.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] W. T. Henton, the widower of seventy-nine summers who pursued of Miss Ellen Symonds, dropped from sight entirely today. With him went his sweetheart.

All efforts today on the part of Henton's three daughters to find him proved unavailing. Yesterday they inquired by telephone just in time to prevent his marriage, first by Rev. Codd and later by Police Justice Aronson. The daughters hired a lawyer to aid their fight against Cupid. Henton retailed by not returning last night to the home of Mrs. Cook, one of his daughters.

Three years ago Henton transferred property worth $1000 to his daughters, they agreeing to provide him a home. They say he hasn't a dollar with which to support a bride. Guardianship papers will probably be asked for if the man is prevented long enough from marrying to obtain them.

Miss Symonds, modest and tearful, says she appreciates how the daughters feel, but she, also, has feelings.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
TACOMA (Wash.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Eight men made a hurried effort to fill a dead man's shoes, following the sudden death of Friday of Edward W. Taylor, Superior Judge of Okanogan and Ferry counties. Judge Taylor's death made a vacancy to be filled in November and Saturday was the last day for receiving declarations of candidacy. Mail would be too slow, so eight lawyers, Hootkins, Brown, Bennett, Ward, Fendegast, Fitzgerald and Burton by telephone and telegraph or both, attempted to hurry their declarations and fees to Olympia.

There was delay in transmitting the messages but all were delivered today. On advice of the Attorney-General, Secretary of State Hinkle has decided to accept the filings. Fitzgerald followed up his message today with an application to Gov. Hay for appointment to fill the vacancy until election. Judge Taylor, who was formerly State Senator from Tacoma, was buried yesterday.

in Los Angeles.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PORTLAND (Or.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] R. A. Turner and Mrs. Cecil North-Turner yesterday were made husband and wife by a Portland minister, after a wild chase across the country in an effort to find a state in which they could be married without defying the divorce laws.

Mrs. Turner was formerly the wife of a prominent Episcopal clergyman of Greeley, Colo., from whom she obtained a divorce six months ago. The granting of a divorce, hence the flight of the couple to Los Angeles, where they found that a similar law prevailed in California.

After attempting in vain to secure a license both in Los Angeles and San Francisco, they finally decided to come to Portland, where the laws of Oregon permit of marriage within six months of the granting of a divorce decree. The marriage was performed by Dr. James D. Corby, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and the couple returned to Denver today.

The police are certain now that he is the incendiary who last summer burned many barns and other structures. McCarthy was not lynched as was only to the show of authority made by the officers.

MAST YACHTS CROSS IN GREAT MATCH RACE.

Two Seconds Ahead of Alert in Ten-Mile

Channel Boat Out of Victory—Today's

BY H. M. STEARNS.

WIRE TO THE TIMES.

Both boats left at Santa Barbara:

2:19:35 2:54:05 3:18:05 3:39:17

In the windward work the Alert made up twenty seconds. Both boats tacked and tacked shore immediately after starting their beat, coming about only when it seemed possible to make the outer mark.

FIRST ADVANTAGE.

A short second tack close to a bed of help gave the Alert the windward berth. This was largely responsible for the Santa Barbara boat's gain in the second leg, as Wood had to pinch

the Alert to make the mark, while the Alert came along to the turn with a good full.

Both boats jibed around the second

flag, and the Alert cut the Mischief's lead almost to inches by quick work with the spinnaker. The Mischief's treacherous site was drawing within three minutes of the turn, however,

and the South Coast yacht again began to crawl away. At the last turn the Alert had a lead of forty-five seconds.

On the close reach home Leach gave the Alert a good lift, pulling through the lee of Wood's slip. Warren kept the Mischief pinched into the wind in an effort to make the finish line without a tack. When the two boats swept past the end of the pier off the Por-

tor there was hardly a rod between them. Leach was quick to see that both would have to tack to make the line, and turned the Alert on her heel

right under the Mischief's stern. Wood followed suit, dropping his lee to le-ward, and the Mischief's lead was lost. The Mischief's lead was

lost. The Mischief's lead was

MEL SHEPPARD TO RETIRE.

Crack Middle Distance Plans to Quit

More Records.

Melville Sheppard, the Olympic hero

and all-around smasher of records, is going to retire from athletics, but not until he has broken four or five more records which he has in view. He wants to retire as the greatest athlete in the history of the world.

The fact that Sheppard is planning a stupendous athletic campaign is known; Sheppard has announced that

But he has only announced privately to friends that he is going to retire from the track and field after he accomplishes his marvelous record.

On August 23 "Shep" will go after the half-mile classic at Poughkeepsie. In September he will try to set a new record for the mile run. In the meanwhile he will try to break Lon Meyer's records for the 320 and 800 yards.

Sheppard says: "A chap only gets in the condition that I'm in now once in a lifetime. I am better now than I ever was. I can convince me that I can carry out my campaign successfully unless I am hurt."

Peerless Alex's friends are urging him not to retire before the next Olympiad is held in Stockholm in 1912.

Sheppard won't promise. However, if he does complete the international event it will be his last try after athletic honors.

STUDY STATUS OF OIL LANDS.

Interior Department Has a Difficult Task.

New Withdrawal Law Makes Matters Complex.

Bakersfield Cases Include Other Problems.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
WASHINGTON (D. C.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] By direction of President Taft the Department of the Interior is to proceed at once to construe the provisions of the withdrawal law, applying to oil lands, and outline a course to be pursued by the government.

First Assistant Secretary Franklin regards the task before him as difficult. Since 1906 the policy under the general mineral statutes has been to recognize no substantial claim until discovery. This is now in great measure upset by the act of Congress to protect the interests of oil men who were "diligently prosecuting work leading to discovery" prior to the Presidential withdrawal order of last September.

More difficult, however, is the provision as to claims initiated subsequent to the withdrawal order. Congress said their asserted rights should not be affected one way or the other by the withdrawal enactment, refusing to decide the standing of the claims, and leaving it to the Secretary of the Interior to do so.

Secretary Pierce hopes California lawyers who are interested in the Bakersfield Fuel and Oil Company cases, now pending, will, in their briefs, enter into a discussion of the new law. In the Bakersfield case the point is whether the seven locators on that quarter section could transfer any claim of title to the eighth locator or a corporation before a discovery was made.

The Assistant Secretary hopes the withdrawal law will be considered in these, so he can have a thorough understanding of the viewpoint of the California oil men.

FRANCE MAKES CHEESE.
INTERESTING STATISTICS.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Cheese-making in France has increased considerably during the last five years, and the progress made in the industry is general. In the Bakersfield case, according to United States Consul Hunt at St. Etienne, France, who says that American holds first rank among foreign countries as consumers of Roquefort cheese, not even having Germany.

In the making of Roquefort cheese last year, 13,267,000 quarts of sheep's milk were used in 110 dairies throughout the department of Aveyron and neighboring departments. This was valued at $3,397,000, and made 4,000,000 cakes, or about 34,725,000 pounds of Roquefort cheese, valued at $5,850,000. Owing to improvements in the methods of raising the cheese in the caves and rigid inspection of the dairies and quality of milk furnished, the Roquefort cheese is much better than it was a few years ago.

The United States imported from St. Etienne last year 139,512 quarts of Roquefort cheese.

TO PROMOTE HARMONY.
HOMESTEAD SETTLEMENTS.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.]
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—In order to promote harmony and cooperation between the field officers of the General Land Office and the forest service in the settlement of homestead claims within the national forests, representatives of the Interior and the Agricultural Departments will leave Washington Thursday for the West to confer with field agents of these two branches of the government. The task has been delegated to James M. Sheridan, chief of the field division of the General Land Office, D. D. Brown of the forest service, and R. W. Williams, Jr., assistant to the solicitor of the Department of Agriculture. The Washington officials will visit Missoula, Mont., Portland, Ore., San Francisco, Ogden, Utah, Denver and Albuquerque, N. M.

MORE CENSUS FIGURES.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Census returns: Newark, N. J., 247,465; Scranton, Pa., 123,867; Schenectady, N. Y., 72,336. The increase at Newark was 101,398, or 41.3 per cent., as compared with 1900. At Scranton, the increase was 27,841, or 22.3 per cent., as compared with 1900. At Schenectady, the increase was 41,144, or 129.2 per cent., as compared with 1900.

DELAVARE MANUFACTURERS.
WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The value of the annual product of the manufactures of Delaware, the first given out by the Census Bureau as the result of its investigations in connection with the thirteenth census, is $2,571,041. This is a gain of more than 25 per cent. since 1904. There was a 25 per cent. gain in salaries and wages, of 11 per cent. in the number of establishments, and of almost 30 per cent in the capital employed.

CAPTURE MAY UNRAVEL PLOT.
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—United States custom inspectors made a seizure of opium recently at Hoboken, N. J., which may reveal a plot of magnitude to evade the government. Three arrests were made and the men were charged with having brought in twelve pounds of opium bought in Shanghai. Congress passed a bill in February, which makes it a crime to have opium without proof of the purchase by an authorized physician of the supply. The penalty is not more than $500 or less than a $50 fine or not less than two years' imprisonment, or both.

NOT ON MATRIMONIAL QUEST.

Duke Franz Josef of Bavaria is Here Merely to See the Country and to Hunt.

His Majesty's Visit to the United States is a Grand Nephew of the Present Prince Regent of that country, arrived today on the Kron Prinzessin Cecilie on a tour of this continent. He is a handsome, erect, slender young man just past his twenty-first birthday. His Royal Highness was perfectly willing to be interviewed by the ship news reporters.

"My main object," he said, "is to study your country and your institutions. But I hope to get some hunting in the West. I am very fond of hunting. In fact, that is my favorite of all sports."

One of the interviewers asked him what he thought of the American women. "Unfortunately for me," said the Duke, "I have never had the pleasure of meeting any American women, though I hope to meet many of them."

The reporter asked whether, if the Duke could secure the consent of the American government, he would like to marry an American girl to whom he was very much attached.

"Not at all," he said, "providing I could secure the consent of the head of our house, the present Prince Regent. However, I have come to look at this great land and not on a matrimonial quest."

One of Four Connecticut Brothers, Who Amassed Millions from $700 Father Gave Each on Reaching Majority, Says They Could Repeat Nowadays Much Easier.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
BRIDGEPORT (Conn.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "If we were to start today as we did, the four brothers of us, a little over fifty years ago, with $700 apiece, the chances are that we would be worth in the same time considerably more than we are today," said Frank Miller, president of the National Bank of Bridgeport, today.

The Miller brothers—Frank, Darius, N. F. and Charles—who, starting out fifty years ago each with $700 given to them by their father, a farmer, met yesterday at a family reunion and reckoned up the united result of their shrewdness at more than $3,000,000.

"And I suppose that most of the young men who read that story," said Mr. Miller, "said to himself: 'Yes, but that was in the good old days of easy times and great opportunities; they could not do it today.' The times are easier today and the opportunities are better than they ever were."

CHICAGOAN LOSES BIG ROLL.
Money Probably Slipped from Book in Hotel—Detectives Rake Over City Dump.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] C. V. Leggett, a retired capitalist living at the Saratoga Hotel, reported to the police today that he lost $100 in cash. He believes that the money slipped from the book in which he carried it, was accidentally swept out of his room and carried away to the city dump, with the rest of the garbage and refuse.

Detectives are now searching the dumps for the missing money, which was in nine bills of $1000 and one bill of $100. Leggett having no faith in the institutions of stone and iron, in which to keep his money, kept the purse pinned to his undergarments.

Leggett instructed a maid to clean his apartment and after she had done the money, it is believed that the purse became loosened, fell to the floor and was swept out by the maid with the rubbish.

ARIZONA-CANANEA ELECTION.
BOSTON, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] J. B. Russell, a recognized director of the Arizona-Cananea Mining Corporation, T. E. Otis was elected president, vice David Miller, who has taken up a permanent residence in San Francisco and cannot, therefore, attend to the actual duties of this office. H. E. Fay of Boston and Sumner & Co., Ltd., of Montreal, is added to the directorate. David Miller remains on the board.

PROXIMATE TO MEET WIFE.

Track Walker, Pensioned, Married Twenty Years Though Absent from Woman Thirty-Five.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
SACRAMENTO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A track walker in the service of the Southern Pacific, a distance equivalent to nine journeys around the world, Manuel K. Silva, watchman in the snowsheds, has applied for a pension, which will be granted as a reward of an old and faithful servant.

Though Silva has reached the age of 61 years, he is connected with his retirement a romance of unusual character.

When he quits work he will go to Portugal to meet a woman whom he has not seen for thirty-one years, although for more than twenty years he has been his wife. A few years after he came to this country Manuel Silva was married to a girl in Portugal. The ceremony took place in the old country, where the bridegroom was represented by proxy.

"After the marriage, as before, Silva continued to pace the railroad tracks through the snowsheds, year in and year out, and came in the distant quarter century of the marriage husband and wife have lived in different hemispheres. Now when both are far advanced into the decline of life they will be united."

French War Minister Plans Campaign of Education to Teach Military Recruits to Fly.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
PARIS, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] The French Minister of War is about to purchase a number of various styles for military purposes. This information was given today by Etienne Clementel, deputy for Puy-de-Dome and secretary of the Committee on the War Budget.

"There will be a regular corps of aviators organized," he explained. "As soon as the first group has been trained to fly, its members will teach the second group, and so on, until the camps will be established throughout France and these also will be equipped with dirigible spherical balloons."

"At the same time, the government will seek to obtain an improved special airplane to carry three armed passengers."

MRS. COREY WILL RETURN.
Lewis Waller Confirms Report That Steel Trust Magnate's Wife Will Play "Catherine."

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
LONDON, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Referring to the report that Mrs. Corey is to return to the stage next year to play Catherine to Lewis Waller's Petruchio, Waller said today:

"It is true Mrs. Corey has approached me, but nothing is settled. If the matter is arranged, I shall probably present 'The Taming of the Shrew' at a series of half a dozen matinees. If all goes well, then the number might be increased to a full season."

The proposal came from her, and I am in correspondence with her now about the matter. She is anxious to play Catherine and as I want to play Petruchio our ideas coincide."

CAR SHORTAGE PROBABLE.
RAILROADS ARE WARNED.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] While many prominent railroad officials are predicting a coming poverty as an excuse for advancing freight rates, the volume of traffic throughout the country, as indicated by the demand for freight cars, is increasing so rapidly that the American Railway Association is already issuing the warnings, urging the roads to do everything in their power to prevent a car shortage this fall.

The warning is circulated through the fortnightly bulletin of the Committee on Relations between railroads of the association sent out by Arthur Hale, chairman. This shows a decrease of 24,000 in the number of plus freight cars in the United States since the previous report, reducing the total to 108,544, the lowest point since March and afterward, 600 below the figures for a year ago.

Ticket Broker Sentenced.
KANSAS CITY (Mo.) Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] A. A. Wilson, today from Judge Smith McPherson of the United States District Court sentenced a ticket broker to ninety days in jail for contempt of court. An injunction against the practice of selling or exchanging reduced rate non-transferable tickets was used in 1906. The court found that Wilson had been selling tickets in contempt of the order.

Delegates to Rotary Convention from Los Angeles Explain Ladies Are Not Allowed Here.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "We are afraid of the women; we can't manage them," was the statement of Lee G. Mettler of Kansas City this morning, before the convention of the National Association of Rotary Clubs, at the Congress Hotel. The question of having women's auxiliary organizations was up for informal discussion.

CANADA BUILDS MANY LINES.

Contracts Let for Seven Thousand Miles.

British Columbia Will Get Most Trackage.

Next Five Years Will See Steel Laid.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Consul A. G. Seyfert of Owen Sound declares that contracts let and engagements entered into with the Dominion of Canada and Provincial governments by the various Canadian railway companies indicate that at least 7000 miles of railroads will be built during the next five years. He summarizes the plans, in part, as follows:

The construction for the present year is 1500 miles, about the same as last year. The largest increase in mileage will be in British Columbia. The construction of the National Transcontinental, better known as the Grand Trunk Pacific, from Moncton on the Atlantic to Prince Rupert on the Pacific, 3500 miles, is more than half completed. On the eastern part of the line, from Moncton to Winnipeg, being built by the Dominion government, out of the 1804 miles 742 miles are graded. The Quebec bridge, now being reconstructed, will cross the St. Lawrence, a part of this system. Of the 1746 miles from Winnipeg to Prince Rupert, 915 miles are completed.

HARRISON IS HEAD OF MONON.
Vice-President of Southern is Chosen to Succeed Rawn, Who Met Violent Death.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] Fairfax Harrison was elected president of the Monon Railroad at a meeting of the directors today. He succeeds Ira G. Rawn, who met a violent death at his home near Chicago, June 25. Since that time the road has been in charge of E. C. Field, general counsel and vice-president.

Mr. Harrison is now vice-president of the Southern Railroad, which, with the Illinois Central, controls the Monon. It was stated at the Monon's offices today that Mr. Harrison will soon resign from this position, which he has held since 1906.

The new president is a son of Burton Harrison and brother of Congressman Francis B. Harrison. He is 41 years old. Mr. Harrison is already a director of the Chicago, Indianapolis & Louisville, as he is of the Richmond, Fredericksburg & Potomac, the Washington Southern, the Mobile & Ohio, the Cincinnati, New Orleans & Texas Pacific, the Great Southern, and the Standard Trust Company.

CHOLERA SPREADS IN RUSSIA.
Peasant Children Starve After Parents Die of Scourge—No Diminishment in Sight.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—The horrors of the cholera scourge in Russia, according to Prof. Fein of the St. Petersburg University, are growing more and more threatening. The government to Southern Russia to study measures of combating the disease, are steadily increasing.

Children are starving, in many instances, because their parents and grandmothers have died, leaving them unsupported.

There is no indication yet of the epidemic diminishing, and thousands of new cases are being registered daily, the official figures, according to reports, underlining the full extent of the disease.

PATCH UP DIFFERENCES.
Ohio Couple Parted in Chicago by Aged Bride's Children, Will Continue Trip to Coast.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That a reconciliation has occurred between Mr. and Mrs. James Diba, the most discussed married couple in Chicago for the last week, and Mrs. W. P. Tannhill, daughter of the septuagenarian bride now living with her youthful husband at No. 5 Congress Hotel, seemed apparent today when Mrs. Diba and Mrs. Tannhill went shopping together in the streets and were evidently on the best of terms.

Mrs. Tannhill admitted that she would return to Zahnevitz, O., today and that Mr. and Mrs. Diba would continue their trip to the Pacific Coast, which was interrupted when relatives attempted to detain Mrs. Diba on the score of her having been unduly influenced by Diba, who is a young man.

WOMEN SEEK BALLOT.

Louisiana Suffragists Will Petition Assembly to Vote Upon Fair Bond Issue.

[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 16.—Members of the Era Club of New Orleans, the leading components of women's suffrage in Louisiana, went in large numbers today to the State Capitol to ask the General Assembly to provide for the right of women non-taxpayers to vote on the proposed bond issue in support of an exposition to be held here in 1915 in commemoration of the completion of the Panama Canal.

On the same train went an opinion of the Attorney General, which declared that only qualified electors could vote on an amendment to the constitution as proposed in the ex-position matter, and declaring that women were not qualified electors.

DISSEMINATION IN RANKS.
New Jersey State Federation of Labor Delegates Wrangle About Non-Union Hotel Contract.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
NEWARK (N. J.) Aug. 16.—There is dissemination in the ranks of the New Jersey State Federation of Labor, which is holding its annual convention here. When the delegates assembled yesterday members of the Walters' and Bartenders' Unions suddenly discovered that the executive committee had arranged its headquarters in a non-union hotel.

The discovery threatened for a time to break up the convention, and nothing much was done during the opening session by officers of the federation but to explain how they had been led into making the mistake and arranging for the transfer of the headquarters to a union house.

BONILLA GIVES UP FIGHT.
NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—Reports concerning what appears to be a complete abandonment of the revolution in Honduras by Manuel Bonilla and his followers were brought by passengers on the steamer Visitor, which arrived from Port Cortes yesterday. It is said that the news of the arrest of Gen. Lee Christmas in Guatemala had reached Port Cortes several days ago, and that this incident, with other reverses had brought about a determination to give up the fight.

CHOLERA SPREADS IN RUSSIA.
Peasant Children Starve After Parents Die of Scourge—No Diminishment in Sight.
[ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.]
ST. PETERSBURG, Aug. 16.—The horrors of the cholera scourge in Russia, according to Prof. Fein of the St. Petersburg University, are growing more and more threatening. The government to Southern Russia to study measures of combating the disease, are steadily increasing.

Children are starving, in many instances, because their parents and grandmothers have died, leaving them unsupported.

There is no indication yet of the epidemic diminishing, and thousands of new cases are being registered daily, the official figures, according to reports, underlining the full extent of the disease.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] "We are afraid of the women; we can't manage them," was the statement of Lee G. Mettler of Kansas City this morning, before the convention of the National Association of Rotary Clubs, at the Congress Hotel. The question of having women's auxiliary organizations was up for informal discussion.

"We don't have women in our club in Kansas City," Mettler said. "You see, we can't manage them—that is, we are afraid to take the risk. We don't know what they might do."

"What is your experience, gentlemen?" I have no experience," promptly replied I. C. Muma, delegate from the Los Angeles club. "We don't have women in our organization. I deny the imputation."

Ohio Couple Parted in Chicago by Aged Bride's Children, Will Continue Trip to Coast.
(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)
CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—[Exclusive Dispatch.] That a reconciliation has occurred between Mr. and Mrs. James Diba, the most discussed married couple in Chicago for the last week, and Mrs. W. P. Tannhill, daughter of the septuagenarian bride now living with her youthful husband at No. 5 Congress Hotel, seemed apparent today when Mrs. Diba and Mrs. Tannhill went shopping together in the streets and were evidently on the best of terms.

Mrs. Tannhill admitted that she would return to Zahnevitz, O., today and that Mr. and Mrs. Diba would continue their trip to the Pacific Coast, which was interrupted when relatives attempted to detain Mrs. Diba on the score of her having been unduly influenced by Diba, who is a young man.

SANTA FE'S MANAGER IS VICTIM OF HEART FAILURE.

End Comes Suddenly at Carlsbad, Austria, Where He Sought Relief from Chronic Indigestion—News Prostrates Wife and Spreads Gloom Over System.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS DAY REPORT.)

TOPEKA (Kan.) Aug. 16.—James E. Hurley, general manager of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe Railroad, died of heart trouble at Carlsbad, Austria, at noon today. Word of his death was received by Henry B. Lauts, assistant to the general manager.

General Manager Hurley left Topeka July 13, for New York and sailed from that city on the fifteenth for Carlsbad, where he expected to spend a few months to regain his strength and find relief from continued attacks of indigestion. A letter was received Monday from Mr. Hurley, written at Carlsbad, in which he said he had been examined by physicians and found to have no organic trouble. His death, therefore, was entirely unexpected and caused almost a panic at the general office of the company. Men gathered in the corridors and wept for no man on the Santa Fe system was so generally loved.

He was exceedingly democratic and the humblest workman was treated as an equal by the general manager. He had risen from the ranks and never forgot the men who had labored with him on the lower rung of the ladder. Mr. Hurley was born at Wapello, Iowa, June 1, 1859, and after finishing school at that place, spent three winter terms at normal school at Bloomfield, Iowa.

Mr. Hurley entered the service of the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe in 1880 as brakeman and was subsequently, until 1932, warehouseman and baggageman. He was then for one year telegraph operator and station clerk at various stations in Kansas. During 1932 was relief agent on the Grande and New Mexico divisions and chief clerk and cashier at Hutchinson, Kan. Since that year, he had held several of the following positions: Agent at Florence, Kan. chief clerk to the general superintendent at Topeka, trainmaster, eastern division assistant superintendent, Missouri division; assistant superintendent, Chicago division; in charge of transportation at Fort Madison, Iowa, from October, 1933 to June, 1934; superintendent New Mexico division, June, 1934 to Oct. 1934; superintendent consolidated New Mexico and Rio Grande divisions, Oct. 1934 to Jan. 1935; acting general superintendent lines west of Albuquerque, at Los Angeles, January to October, 1935.

On the latter date, he was appointed general superintendent of the western division, at La Junta, Colo., and in July, 1935 he was made general superintendent of the eastern division, which position he held until his promotion to the office of general manager May 1, 1936.

Mr. Hurley is survived by his wife and two children. Mrs. Hurley and daughter, Hildegarde, are in Los Angeles. Mrs. Hildegarde, the son, is in Denver, where he is a participant in the golf tournament.

NEWS PROSTRATES WIFE.

(ASSOCIATED PRESS NIGHT REPORT.)

COMES CLOSE TO DEATH.

Whittier Lineman's Ear Touches High Voltage Wire and Current Passes Through Body.

WHITTIER, Aug. 16.—Louis Steen, a lineman for the Southern California Edison Company, narrowly escaped death this morning when he came in contact with a high voltage feed wire, while working at the Santa Fe Springs pumping plant about three miles south of here.

Steen was standing on a box putting on some knobs for new wiring, and in an effort to reach a little higher he touched a 10,000-volt feed wire to one of the motors with his left ear. The current passed through his body and came out through his right foot, severely burning his toes. The man was thrown to the ground by the force of the shock, and received several bruises about the head, as well as scratching the side of his face on the wall as he fell. Had it not been for George Lynn, foreman for the company, and Arthur Humbert, another lineman, Steen might have lost his life. The men of the Southern California Edison Company are well trained for such emergencies and the company physicians and Lynn and Humbert gave first aid to the sufferer as well as could have been done by the average doctor.

As soon as possible Steen was placed in the company wagon and brought to Whittier, where his wounds were dressed by Dr. W. H. Stokes. At the regular meeting of the City Trustees last night an ordinance was read for the first time calling for the proposed bond election $2000 for a new public park on West Philadelphia street, to be held September 14. The members of the L. R. R. C. and Sons of Veterans will leave tomorrow for the encampment at Huntington Beach. Saturday night will be "Whittier" Night, and the local orders will have charge of the programme that evening.

MARRIES IN HER "NIGHTIE."

Georgia Society Girl Faces Minister With Her Young Man After Escape from Home.

(BY DIRECT WIRE TO THE TIMES.)

ATLANTA (Ga.) Aug. 16.—Arrayed only in her night gown and stockings, Miss Columbia Cheek, a prominent member of Atlanta's younger social set, was married at 3 o'clock this morning to Guy H. Buchanan. Buchanan and Miss Cheek have been engaged for some time, but the girl's parents objected to the match. Early last night Miss Cheek's parents learned that the lovers planned to elope and they looked the girl in her room after taking away her clothing. Buchanan heard of his sweetheart's predicament and after midnight went in an automobile to the Cheek home. By means of a step-ladder Miss Cheek descended from her room, was placed in the automobile and hurried to the rectory of Emanuel Baptist Church, where they were married. The bride looked quite stunning in her "nightie" and lace thread.

WEDNESDAY MORNING, AUGUST 17, 1910.

THE PRIMARIES.

STANTON LOSES LOS ANGELES; JOHNSON CARRIES THE COUNTY.

Sheriff Hammel and Dist. Atty. Fredericks, Regular Republicans, Renominated—Meyer Lissner Defeated for Delegate to County Convention—Light Vote in City. Returns Very Incomplete at Time of Going to Press and Many Issues in Doubt.

The trick worked in Los Angeles yesterday. Democrats voted as Republicans in sufficient numbers to carry the city for the nomination of Hiram Johnson for Governor. At the hour of going to press only a small percentage of the vote had been counted; but an analysis of the returns showed that Stanton had lost his own town. He carried his precinct handsomely. The total vote was lighter than anticipated. The returns thus far received indicate that Johnson will lead in the county by about 3000 plurality.

In the popular vote (advisory) for United States Senator, Works (L. R.) leads Meserve and Spalding in Los Angeles city, so far as the votes have been counted. Stephens (L. R.) leads McLachlan in the city, but the country vote favors McLachlan. The Lincoln-Roosevelts, who strongly fought the renomination of Dist. Atty. Fredericks (Rep.) and Sheriff Hammel (Rep.) concede that both have won. Lelande (L. R.) has apparently captured the County Clerk's office. The full returns will not be available till tomorrow night, and will probably change the aspect of things. The complexion of the Legislature cannot be determined till then, nor the election of judges.

HALT FOR SPELLACY.

Col. Tom Spellacy, local candidate for the Lieutenant-Governorship, stopped on his way down town to cast a ballot for Theodore Bell. The election clerk in his precinct had to halt proceedings long enough to haul up some Democratic blanks. They had no time to see any of that brand. Political headquarters were as quiet as the rest of the city. The workers were all out early, and with the exception of an occasional call for an automobile there was no sound down town. Meyer Lissner and the empty quarters of the Lincoln-Roosevelt League, that had not found headquarters the managers of the campaign had a peaceful day.

DULL AND "DRY."

MANY VOTERS LEAVE THE CITY.

AND ELECTION DAY IS MORE QUIET THAN SUNDAY.

The Democrats, of Whom a Few Are Located, Find Difficulty in Getting Blanks for Balloting—Automobiles More of a Factor Than Ever Before.

That millennial epoch when every day will be Sunday—or election day—is evidently approaching with rapidity. Election days are becoming so common and so much like Sunday that the average citizen who gets the benefit of the legal holiday puts on his best clothes and goes to the beach.

That millennial epoch when every day will be Sunday—or election day—is evidently approaching with rapidity. Election days are becoming so common and so much like Sunday that the average citizen who gets the benefit of the legal holiday puts on his best clothes and goes to the beach.

As yesterday is quieter than Sunday, in that the church bells do not ring. That was the only feature that distinguished yesterday from a Puritanical Sabbath.

Yesterday was about the driest day Los Angeles ever saw—drier than that memorable year when the frogs moved out and made a pilgrimage across the desert. The clubs were dry and there was a husky protest from hundreds of throats that have never been reduced to such straits before. As usual on election day, large crowds appeared at such clubs as the Jonathan, the California and the Sierra Madre. The bars and sideboards were locked, and it was even impossible to get drinks with meals.

There was a general summoning of automobiles, with impromptu excursion to near-by points where the city ordinance does not apply. "Sunday" was over at 4 o'clock, and there was a rushing business all over town. At the polls the only indications of an election day were found. The voting started early, but it did not continue "often." At points where there was no registration the election boards had no difficulty in keeping up with the demand for ballots and checking off the voters.

One difficulty in some outside precincts caused no end of complaint. The Democrats, Socialists and Prohibitionists found that the blanks for their vote had not been sent out. Some of them expressed a willingness to vote the Republican ticket for once, were sure enough that most of their candidates would be nominated. The primary election law prohibits this solution of the difficulty. The first precinct heard from was Tropico No. 1. Inspector E. M. Penfield reported his difficulty to the County Clerk, and it was found that there were extra ballots to send out. A tour of the near-by polling places was made to borrow extra blanks but this, too, proved impossible. At last reports the Democrats, of whom there are a few in the vicinity of Casa Verdugo, were still calling for a chance to vote.

Usually it is deemed an honor among the Good Government-Lined-Roosevelt organization to be called a "nagger" for the little boss; but this time he and Stimson sat alone with a levy of charming young women who were ready to put down figures if any came. But so few came that the scene soon resembled a High School class taking a rest while the teacher talks to a distinguished visitor. It is the first time young women have been employed for such purposes election nights in Los Angeles.

Not only were the young women there, but they were numerous in other duties usually attended to by men, and it created the impression that Lissner is making ready for the suffragette plank in the G.-O.-L.-R. organization of the near future. All the young women wore Johnson badges. From the beginning the bulletins sent from the head of the table indicated a landslide for the L.-R. State ticket. Of course the computations were based on partial returns from many precincts and many of these precincts reported different totals during the night. Lissner kept tab on all this, and the bulletins posted were treated as Lissner statements. As the night progressed the totals grew and the ratio between Johnson and the field seemed maintained throughout. When the final bulletin comprising returns from 108 precincts in Los Angeles was posted, showing that Johnson had 3800 out of 5000 votes counted, it was assumed that the State ticket had carried by a big plurality in the county, and that some of the county ticket was surely elected. A majority of 5000 for Johnson in the county was bulletined.

Without returns to back up the statements the Lissner computing chamber announced the certain nomination of Bell, Hewitt and Gates for Senators in the three districts and the defeat of Transue in the Seventy-first Assembly District. With a doubtful result between Lyon and Saunders, the latter the L.-R. candidate. Other L.-R. claims as to the legislative ticket were more hopes. As to the county ticket it was conceded that Dist. Atty. Fredericks had

STATEMENT BY P. A. STANTON.

Personally I am very much relieved, and have no feelings of disappointment or resentment whatever. The people of the South seemed to think that at this critical period their interests would be just as well safeguarded by a man from the North as by one from the South. I hope they will be. In their judgment and decision I cheerfully acquiesce.

I made a clean, decent, open and above-board fight, with no entangling alliances. Possibly had I bowed my neck or truckled to men or measures I might have succeeded, but I prefer the independence of a private citizen to a public career under restraint.

I am for the winner.

The couple then became loud in their dissent, and Stanfield appeared. They say that Phillips felled Stanfield with his fist and then drew his knife and slashed him in the back. A physician was summoned, but the child was not removed to a hos-

YOUNG MOTHERS
The greatest crisis in a woman's life is when first she becomes a mother. All the physical strength of her nature is demanded at such times, and it is necessary that her system be thoroughly prepared for the event, in order that her health be preserved for future years. Mother's Friend is woman's safest reliance; it is a medicine for external use, composed of oils and other ingredients which assist nature in all necessary physical changes of the system. Its regular use before the coming of baby prepares the muscles and tendons for the unusual strain, aids in expanding the skin and flesh, and strengthens all the membranes and tissues. Mother's Friend lessens the pain and danger at the crisis, and leaves the mother in such healthy condition that her recovery is always rapid and natural. Mother's Friend is sold at drug stores. THE TIMES.

Note: Notwithstanding tremendous extra sales in July, 1909, occasioned by the Elks' Convention, a substantial gain is shown in the average daily circulation of the Times this year over last. Obviously, the showing, under the circumstances, is unusual, and is convincing proof to advertisers that they are getting better value in the Times than in any other Los Angeles paper. In five years, the circulation of this paper has increased 40 per cent, or an average of over 17,000 copies per day.

Los Angeles Made Cat's-Paw
for San Francisco.

Thousands Are Spent to Breed Discontent.

Head of Metal Trades Admits Jig Is Up.

That all is not serene among the union metal workers and that those at the head and responsible for the strikes are not at all sanguine as to the ultimate outcome of the difficulties is becoming more and more evident. Los Angeles was brought into the mixup in the hope that trouble down here might take the eyes of the employers off San Francisco and thus put a stop to the irritation being felt in the northern city against the undue machinations and domination of the self-appointed bosses.

James O'Connell, the head of the allied metal trades, in a letter written to President Joseph P. Valentine of the I.M.U. of N.A.A. at Cincinnati, was how very doubtful the labor leader himself feels regarding the outlook, and points out that some of the dupes will have to shift for themselves unless the trades stand together.

A BROTHERLY ROAR.
The letter is as follows:
"I have received a communication this morning from Brother Wilson of the patternmakers, urging me to call a meeting of the metal trades at Cincinnati, July 14 or 15. I have written him on the matter, as I will be impossible for me to attend any meeting at that time in Cincinnati. We have about 400 people on strike, our payrolls are running very heavy, and it is absolutely necessary that I be near headquarters to look after financial affairs, and I cannot see what can be gained by calling a meeting of the metal trades at Cincinnati, because there are only three trades of any importance involved in the question on the Pacific Coast and Puget Sound, namely, machinists, molders and patternmakers."

"The boiler makers, as you know, are employed in separate institutions, where only boys and women of that kind are manufactured. None of these plants are involved at points outside of Los Angeles. The blacksmiths cut a very small figure outside of Los Angeles, and if they are not financially able to take care of their men, they cannot expect to take any action involving their people in trouble unless the trades do the same, so that it is really up to the machinists, molders and patternmakers to make the fight at Portland, Seattle, Tacoma, Everett, Astoria, Victoria and Vancouver."

"When we first started the movement looking toward the shorter workday on the Pacific Coast and Puget Sound, it was largely at your suggestion that we began preparing for the movement June 3, so as to hold the eight-hour day in San Francisco. It was generally understood among all of us that if we were to succeed in holding the eight-hour day in San Francisco it would be necessary to extend these conditions to Los Angeles and points on the Puget Sound, and I went ahead with this understanding and placed several organizers in the field, and spent several thousands of dollars organizing the workers with the understanding that all trades were going to be prepared to move June 1, 1935."

"When I received word from your executive board that decided to make no move for the shorter workday outside of Los Angeles and at San Francisco to hold the eight-hour day, if necessary, it came to me as a very great surprise, because I had informed your people along the line that the metal trades were going to stand together, particularly the molders, patternmakers and machinists."

"I find myself in most awkward position trying to explain to our people the why it is that only the machinists on the Puget Sound are now struggling to stand together, while that and the molders and patternmakers are taking no part with us. I am confident if the molders and patternmakers were to take part in this affair that the prospects of victory at least would be much brighter, but if the machinists are left alone to fight it out it is going to be a long-drawn-out affair, an expensive one, and the final result very doubtful."

"I am, therefore, writing you, urging upon you and your general executive board the necessity, without any further delay, of calling together the officers of any of the metal trades or the metal trades departments to take such steps as will result in the machinists, molders and patternmakers, in this struggle."

"If this is not done, I certainly am in a very awkward position to explain to our members, at least why I have been misled into believing that the other metal trades were going to do their part in helping to extend the shorter workday and which I am strongly convinced we have already agreed upon."

"I should like to have a reply by return mail as to just what the officers of your organization intend to do in the matter so that I can specifically tell our people whether we can expect the cooperation and assistance of other metal trades, particularly of the molders and patternmakers, in this struggle."

"I see no further use for holding conferences of any kind between the officers of the organizations. It is up to the organizations to do their part. If we fail in this, our really first attempt, to introduce the shorter workday, I am afraid it will set us back many years to come. I desire to say I feel the situation keenly, and feel I have been left in a rather peculiar position with the machinists on the Pacific Coast, and unless the other trades get into the fight I shall feel I have been in some way deceived or have at least unintentionally misrepresented the situation to our people on the Pacific Coast and elsewhere."

"I am inclosing a copy of this letter to Brother Wilson."

AUTO BACKS INTO MAN.
Book-keeper for Garage Concern Is Knocked Down and Receives Injury to Brain.

Stepping in the rear of an automobile which was backing out of a driveway at Tenth and South Olive streets last evening, Ora S. Bickelstein, a book-keeper employed at the garage of the Nash & Fenimore Company, No. 1000-02 South Olive street, was knocked down and injured.

He was taken to the Receiving Hospital, where it was found he had sustained a slight concussion of the brain. He was later removed to his home at No. 2516 Pasadena avenue. The machine which struck him is said to be owned by John W. Watson of No. 628 West 10th street.

EVENTS IN LOCAL SOCIETY.

BOREA a brilliant gathering of friends, relatives and invited guests in Boreas Hall last evening. Miss Marion McClure, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Upon McClure of No. 2206 Leoti street, became the bride of Edward Keasbey, eldest son of Dr. William P. Keasbey of No. 2402 Juliet street. Rev. Dr. Robert J. Burdette, pastor emeritus of Temple Baptist Church, officiated.

Boreas Hall was beautifully decorated in a color scheme of green and white. The music was rendered by four members of the bride's sorority of Nu Phi Chi, namely, Miss Joanna Mahony, piano; Miss Helen Thresher, cello; Miss Vivian Duane, violin; and Miss Irene Bean, vocal. The maid of honor was Miss Marjorie McClure, who wore a pink dress and carried a bouquet of pink roses and carried a basket of pink asters. Ralph Johnson was best man. The ushers were Harry Rogers, Charles Sneed, Edward Selph and Raymond Thompson. The bride, who was given away by her father, wore a magnificent wedding dress of cream silk, being the same in which her mother was married, as well as the veil. The bride's charming head was crowned with orange blossoms. Little William P. Keasbey, Jr., was page of the ring. The full church wedding service was used. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Keasbey received the congratulations of their friends and immediately started on a honeymoon trip for the North. Mr. Keasbey, although only 23 years of age, is district traffic chief for the northern district of the Pacific Telephone & Telegraph Company, with headquarters in Chicago.

Botts-Davis Wedding.
Everybody in town will be interested in the news from Chicago of the wedding of Miss Josephine Botts, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. Botts of this city, to Martin Davis, Jr., of El Paso, which was solemnized at twilight in Grace Church, Chicago, where the bride has been the guest for some time of relatives and friends. Following the service, supper was served at Hotel Blackstone. Miss Botts has been traveling in the East for several months and passed several weeks in Philadelphia with Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Vandergriff, whom she later visited at their summer home at The Thousand Islands. She is a member of the younger social set, and the news will add a pleasant bit of gossip for them. It is said that Mrs. Davis will arrive in this city in a day or so and functions large and small will be given in their honor.

Extended Tour.
The H. Jevnes, who are enjoying an extended tour through Europe, will pass September in England.

Dinner Party.
Dr. and Mrs. W. J. Nesbitt of No. 350 Eagle street presided at a dinner party this week in honor of Mrs. Nesbitt's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Elmonte Allen, who will leave today on an eastern tour.

White and purple asters brightened the table where covers were laid for Dr. and Mrs. John A. Short, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Krasner, Mr. and Mrs. Fenton Allen, Miss Ethel Allen, Joseph Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Montrose Allen, Miss Sarah Douglas, Miss Rose Crocker, Miss Anna Leach, James Parker, David Porter and John J. Crocker.

A very charming wedding last evening was celebrated at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. M. S. Dunn of No. 249 Chahuenga boulevard, the bride being Miss Cornelia Collins of Maquoketa, Ia. The wedding was held at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Dunn. The groom, J. A. Bolton, is a prominent lumber merchant and real estate owner of Sioux City, having formerly resided in Maquoketa. A officiating clergyman was Dr. Robert J. Burdette, an old Iowa friend. Mr. and Mrs. Bolton went to Portland, Seattle and the Vancouver country for their wedding journey, and will reside in Los Angeles after September 16th.

A pleasant remark connected with the marriage is the fact that the bride and groom first met on Mr. Bolton's birthday anniversary; they became engaged on the bride's birthday, and they were married on the groom's birthday. A officiating clergyman was Dr. Robert J. Burdette, an old Iowa friend. Mr. and Mrs. Bolton went to Portland, Seattle and the Vancouver country for their wedding journey, and will reside in Los Angeles after September 16th.

Who Hits the Mark?

High aim and steady nerve the test.

Fair Florence at the top again! "Behold how great a matter is the kindness," applies sometimes in the Scholarship Contest. Only 1500 points, after all the thousands scored in last Saturday, seemed a small amount to boost Florence from second to first place. Another time it might take well into the tens of thousands, just to hold her in place.

A thousand points kept Howard Collins from sixth to fifth place. It took 1445 to hold Mabel Swapp from thirteenth to the dozen place, yet Mabel is a very small girl. It really began to look as though thirteen were not a good place to start from to go up higher, for Mabel got stuck there and heretofore no amount of scoring would budge her from that spot.

On the other hand, Daisy Daniels counted 155 and simply held her place as eleventh.

Little Jerome Waller held his own with a count of 375, while Frederick Ayars went up one place on 250. Such are the fortunes of figures. This week is starting out before a fair strong wind, which is bound to sail the scholarship to far and interesting shores. All are determined to do their very greatest this week. Many have told the scholarship manager that it is their intention to score at every possible turn, to help make this the greatest week in scholarship history. This spirit is deeply appreciated by the manager. The young people and their aims and ambitions have become very dear to the manager during this season of strenuous endeavor, and it is gratifying to feel that the interest is mutual, and that all are willing and anxious to assist in their turn in making Manager's Week a success.

Let the scores pile up higher and higher, day after day! They will be valuable not only for this week, but for the weeks to come and for the great finale, when everything will count.

Things of interest are happening to the contestants every day. Gladys Ragnall, who has been ill, made a visit to headquarters yesterday, the first in a number of days. Gladys had been invited by a very lovely lady, Mrs. Steydam of Glendora, to visit her at her home in that place and to secure a number of subscriptions which she says are growing on the orange trees out there for a girl of about Gladys's age. She said some very complimentary things about Gladys, by the way, although she has never seen her, but she judges by her picture that she is a very sensible girl. So Gladys is going to Glendora to pick some of those yellow subscription slips from the orange trees out there. Watch her score!

Mrs. H. C. Sheridan of Los Angeles sent in a bundle of coupons for Irene Sheppard, together with a very pleasant letter in which she says that, although she is not acquainted with the young girl, she wishes to help her in the very laudable ambition to "be something worth while," as Irene stated in her letter to the manager, that she intended to do. Florence Lambert spent last week in Fillmore, Santa Paula and Piru, where she gained some pretty tan, made many friends and incidentally covered a few yellow labels with names of the citizens thereabout. Florence is warm to the heart of the hospitality of the people in that locality, and she may return to devour what few fried chickens (with country gravy) she missed, on her last trip.

Daisy Daniels is glad that her name is Daniels and she isn't even beginning to think of changing it. Besides, the little boy who sent in the coupon, because his name was Daniela, a lady whose maiden name was Daniela has helped Daisy.

The little boy, aged 9, was named Joseph Daniela, and Daisy has an uncle named 30 years old, whose name is identical.

Whether because of a name or because of a number, because of a liking for the picture of a colonel, or because of a desire to boost this one or get ahead of that one, let every one who ever intends to help a candidate turn in this week and lend that afore-said help!

Senora Dalton.

WIDOW OF FORMER AUTOGRAF OF SAN GABRIEL VALLEY. VIVID ENTRIES IN DIARY.

BY MARY A. CLARKE COLQUHOUN.

Fifty years ago there were five hundred residents in the San Gabriel Cañon—more than in the whole valley at that time. There was much gaiety in the cañon. The days were given to gold, but the nights were given to the miners and their friends to feasting and dancing and song.

In those early days the activities in the cañon were more varied than they are today. There was not only mining, but extensive farming was also carried on. All the water of the San Gabriel River was at the disposal of the miners, and each had his own mesa where he raised vegetables, fruit and grain. Some raised cattle, also, and pastured them in the hide cañons.

But the time was fast approaching when all this was to be changed. The people of the valley acquired the sole right to the water of the San Gabriel River, and today evidences of the former life and activities in the cañon are rare.

Two miles south of the mouth of the cañon stands "the old adobe," the oldest house in Azusa. The "Cañon City" it was built in 1856 by Henry Dalton, who at that time owned some 16,000 acres of land in this valley, a grant from the Mexican government. It was a time when fortunes were easily made and easily lost in this western world; when one day a man owned half a State, and the next had nowhere to lay his head. So the princely estate slipped through the fingers of the owner, and today a few acres only remain in the possession of his heirs.

Within a stone's throw of the old adobe lived the woman who was once its proud and happy mistress, to whom it is yet dear, and for whose sake it is carefully preserved by her children.

This woman, Senora Guadalupe Zamorano Dalton, was born in Monterey in 1832. At five years of age she went with her parents to San Diego. In 1847, when but fifteen years old, she was married to Henry Dalton, who came to the Azusa Rancho to live and here she has resided ever since. She is of mixed French and Spanish descent. Her father was born in Florida, when that State was still a part of Spain; her mother, in whose veins flowed the French blood, was born in Santa Barbara. The little Guadalupe was carefully reared by her mother, receiving the education of a young lady of that time, being instructed in the arts of reading, writing, cookery, music and fine needlework.

Her father was an engineer and a newspaper man. He helped start in Monterey the first newspaper published in California. The paper was a good-sized sheet, and Senora Dalton remembers seeing a copy of it as late as 1882. After the death of Senor Zamorano, his wife loaned the newspaper upon which the paper was printed to Ignatius O'Connell, who wished to send to Mexico news of the arrival of the Americans, and she never got the press back.

Mr. Dalton was a genuine Cockney. His family was an ancient one. They had large holdings in England and a castle four hundred years old. But the spirit of adventure was born in this man; he left the home-land in early life, and after many experiences in different countries, settled on this coast.

He had various business interests. He owned a string of stores from San Francisco to San Diego, also a line of wheat, on which he shipped to England and brought hard woods therefrom.

After coming to Azusa Rancho, he planted extensive vineyards and made wine, brandy and vinegar; he also engaged largely in the drying of fruits, which he sold in Los Angeles and in his own stores, with which he supplied his ships. He operated a grist-mill, too, where were ground large quantities of corn and wheat which he had raised.

The first time that the bright-eyed, raven-haired Guadalupe saw the man she was afterward to marry, was in San Diego, on October 4, 1844. She was then twelve years old, and in company with several other girls was playing in the house of a neighbor, Senor Semarano Pedrona. At the sound of a knock all the other girls scampered away, but demure Senorita Zamorano opened the door to find a stranger, a slight man with black hair and eyes, standing before her.

"Si Senor, was the reply. And the girl showed her careful breeding as she invited the stranger in and asked him to be seated, while she went in search of Pedrona.

The two men had been friends in a distant part of the country in earlier years and the meeting between them was most cordial. Mr. Dalton, however, would not let the little girl leave the room, but asked her to sing for him, which she did, accompanying herself on the guitar.

The second meeting between these two was on December 24, 1844, when little Guadalupe opened the door of her home to see again the slight, dark man, and to receive a kiss on the cheek.

"It is a Christmas Eve kiss," he said, as she drew away from him. But all the same she ran pointing to her mother, only to be told not to mind if such an old man kissed her. There was, indeed, more than thirty years difference in their ages, but in spite of this disparity, they were married in 1847, in the Plaza Church of Los Angeles. It took Mr. Dalton a month to get a home ready for his girl-bride on his Azusa ranch, and then it was a very lonely place to which he brought her, for their nearest neighbors were in Pomona, San Gabriel and La Puente.

What a change has been wrought in this region during the life-time of this woman who is not yet old! When she came here there were only two dry-goods stores in Los Angeles, and many years after that a man who is still living in Los Angeles offered Mr. Dalton a lot between Spring and Main streets, near First, for $200.

As for the sun-kissed valley of which Mr. Dalton's grant formed a part, it is a striking illustration that the desert can, indeed, be made to blossom as the rose. Where once the sagebrush and cactus ran riot, their sway disputed only by the boulders which the river yearly brought down from the cañon, there is found today one of the most highly cultivated and most productive spots in all the world.

And certainly Henry Dalton did one man's share toward developing this valley. He has left a voluminous diary, in many leather-bound volumes, in which he has recorded all that took place under his supervision for many years. The diary is a treasure of the number and the variety of the industries which he carried on. There was the raising of cattle and clearing of land, the making of roads, the planting and caring for vineyards and for orchards comprising a great variety of the products of this valley, gathering and grinding of corn and wheat; the planting and picking of cotton; the making of wine, brandy and vinegar; the raising of cattle and horses; the tanning of hides, the breaking of wild horses and oxen, the raising of Hanover and Virginia tobacco, the drying of fruits, the building and repairing of houses, stables and dams; the caring of bees, with a thousand other occupations, and an almost daily journey by some one to Los Angeles, from which place all supplies of food not raised at home, and all lumber and tools were obtained.

The word Azusa is of Indian origin. It means Indian kingdom. This region at the mouth of the San Gabriel Cañon was long the home of the Yaqui Indians, and the work laid out by Mr. Dalton was largely done by the men of this tribe. Many terse entries in the diary give a glimpse of the difficulties attending the raising of this large force of men. One day he records that the evening before three Indians ran away, after receiving their rations. On another occasion he went to Los Angeles, expecting to take the steamer for San Francisco. The steamer had gone, so he returned home unexpectedly, and "found all the Indians drunk."

"Monday—Indians at work," was evidently a red-letter day. On that day he records that the evening before three Indians ran away, after receiving their rations. On another occasion he went to Los Angeles, expecting to take the steamer for San Francisco. The steamer had gone, so he returned home unexpectedly, and "found all the Indians drunk."

It is related that one of his Indians was so fond of brandy that Mr. Dalton said to him one day: "Joe, when you die, I'm going to bury you in a cask of brandy."

"Whereupon the Indian dropped to his knees, raised his hands in supplication, and exclaimed: "Bury me alive!"

Mr. Dalton kept a careful record of the weather. It would seem to have changed greatly in some respects from what it was forty years ago, for at that time, being instructed in the arts of reading, writing, cookery, music and fine needlework.

He had various business interests. He owned a string of stores from San Francisco to San Diego, also a line of wheat, on which he shipped to England and brought hard woods therefrom.

The two men had been friends in a distant part of the country in earlier years and the meeting between them was most cordial. Mr. Dalton, however, would not let the little girl leave the room, but asked her to sing for him, which she did, accompanying herself on the guitar.

The second meeting between these two was on December 24, 1844, when little Guadalupe opened the door of her home to see again the slight, dark man, and to receive a kiss on the cheek.

"It is a Christmas Eve kiss," he said, as she drew away from him. But all the same she ran pointing to her mother, only to be told not to mind if such an old man kissed her. There was, indeed, more than thirty years difference in their ages, but in spite of this disparity, they were married in 1847, in the Plaza Church of Los Angeles. It took Mr. Dalton a month to get a home ready for his girl-bride on his Azusa ranch, and then it was a very lonely place to which he brought her, for their nearest neighbors were in Pomona, San Gabriel and La Puente.

What a change has been wrought in this region during the life-time of this woman who is not yet old! When she came here there were only two dry-goods stores in Los Angeles, and many years after that a man who is still living in Los Angeles offered Mr. Dalton a lot between Spring and Main streets, near First, for $200.

As for the sun-kissed valley of which Mr. Dalton's grant formed a part, it is a striking illustration that the desert can, indeed, be made to blossom as the rose. Where once the sagebrush and cactus ran riot, their sway disputed only by the boulders which the river yearly brought down from the cañon, there is found today one of the most highly cultivated and most productive spots in all the world.

And certainly Henry Dalton did one man's share toward developing this valley. He has left a voluminous diary, in many leather-bound volumes, in which he has recorded all that took place under his supervision for many years. The diary is a treasure of the number and the variety of the industries which he carried on. There was the raising of cattle and clearing of land, the making of roads, the planting and caring for vineyards and for orchards comprising a great variety of the products of this valley, gathering and grinding of corn and wheat; the planting and picking of cotton; the making of wine, brandy and vinegar; the raising of cattle and horses; the tanning of hides, the breaking of wild horses and oxen, the raising of Hanover and Virginia tobacco, the drying of fruits, the building and repairing of houses, stables and dams; the caring of bees, with a thousand other occupations, and an almost daily journey by some one to Los Angeles, from which place all supplies of food not raised at home, and all lumber and tools were obtained.

The word Azusa is of Indian origin. It means Indian kingdom. This region at the mouth of the San Gabriel Cañon was long the home of the Yaqui Indians, and the work laid out by Mr. Dalton was largely done by the men of this tribe. Many terse entries in the diary give a glimpse of the difficulties attending the raising of this large force of men. One day he records that the evening before three Indians ran away, after receiving their rations. On another occasion he went to Los Angeles, expecting to take the steamer for San Francisco. The steamer had gone, so he returned home unexpectedly, and "found all the Indians drunk."

"Monday—Indians at work," was evidently a red-letter day. On that day he records that the evening before three Indians ran away, after receiving their rations. On another occasion he went to Los Angeles, expecting to take the steamer for San Francisco. The steamer had gone, so he returned home unexpectedly, and "found all the Indians drunk."

tion is made of the passage through this region of five wagonloads of Mormons, en route from Los Angeles to Salt Lake City. The diary is silent on the subject, but Mrs. Dalton remembers that these Latter-day Saints stole all the sacks and the belting from their mill, as well as a number of horses from a man living near Puente.

The diary is written partly in English and partly in Spanish, after changing from one language to the other in the short space of the record of one day's occurrences. It deals with a life which, though not record in time, is far distant in conditions. It reminds us that Southern California is very young, that wonderful changes have taken place here during the past half century; and it shows how easily and readily the country yields to man's effort at development.

THRIFTY FRANCE.
Country Whose People Have a Habit of Saving, and Where Lotteries Are Legitimate.

Interesting information regarding the thrift of the French people is contained in the latest publication put out by the National Monetary Commission in the shape of a contribution by Alfred Neymark, editor of the Revue, a French financial publication.

M. Neymark, to show how general the habit of saving is in France, says: "There are in France 10,000,000 electors, almost all taxpayers. All or nearly all save their money with savings institutions, in the form of benefit societies, in banks and securities, in lands (unimproved property), and in houses (improved property). Such is the composition of the private wealth of France, a wealth which is infinitely disseminated.

"It can be proved, in fact, that of these 10,000,000 electors, at least have a book at some savings institutions, a government rent, a railroad or credit foncier bond, or some other security, a strip of land or a house, whether large or small. And this is not all. The French rentier does not invest everything he has, but always keeps by him some available means in gold, silver or bank notes to provide for sudden demands, and lays it aside in order to use it later, either in temporary or in definite and more profitable investments."

There are 1,500,000 investors in France who are holders of 3 per cent. rentes, corresponding to our own consols, and their total holdings, according to M. Neymark, are $1,000,000,000, or about $1,000,000,000. Banks and other financial institutions hold most of the government bonds in the United States.

Lotteries are legitimate institutions in France, and lottery bonds are held largely by the people. Of this M. Neymark says:

Everybody desires to leave the door open to fortune, and the smallest holdings, as well as the largest, contain a lottery bond of the city of Paris, of the Credit Foncier, or of some provincial town, or some foreign lottery certificates negotiable in France, such as the Austrian bonds of 1860, etc. We possess 4,000,000 francs in lottery bonds. The capital invested in these bonds results again from the economy of small investors and represents part of the savings of the democracy. Neither in England nor in the United States is there found such a use of funds, for there is not in these countries, as in France, an army of people who put by small savings."

In distributing the interest on the foreign lottery bonds the whole amount due is put into a pool and divided into prizes. Those holding the lucky numbers get all the interest, but the losers, of course, get the principal of their investment on the bonds' maturity.

Annual savings of all classes of French investors, according to M. Neymark, average between 1,000,000,000 francs and 2,000,000,000 francs, or from $200,000,000 to $400,000,000.

Struck the Right Place.
A Woman's Christian Temperance Union president was in Boston, but did not care to dine in a hotel where liquor was served. Finally she discovered one which appeared to be on the cold water list. After she had seated herself at a table, however, to make sure, she lived just as happily. An instructor in physics in a Washington school was affording his pupils some knowledge touching the elements of oxygen.

"Oxygen," said he, "is essential to all animal existence; there could be no life without it, and yet, strange to say, it was discovered only a century ago."

The economy of superheated steam was discussed at the International Railway Congress, and G. Nolten of Husum, stated that when properly managed the superheated steam locomotive consumed, as a rule, from 15 to 20 per cent. less water, and 8 to 10 per cent. less coal than saturated locomotives for an equal amount of power. On the Belgian lines, where superheating had been tried, the resulted economies were stated to have reached 29.44 per cent. for coal and 23.67 per cent. for water, but the saving only began to be manifest with from 20 to 100 deg. Fahr. of super-heat. The Canadian Pacific has adopted superheating extensively, and has
at the present time about 475 such engines in service.
The Pullman Company has decided to abandon the shops it has operated at Denver and will transfer its work from there to Richmond, Colo. Five hundred men will thus lose employment unless they are transferred to Richmond. The Denver shops are to be given up because the State Board of Equalization increased the valuation of the Pullman Company's property in the State to $1,500,000, as against $520,000.
SELL SKIN FOR REVENUE.
New Industry Engaged in by a Healthy
Young German—Makes Good Money.
The advance in the science of skin
grafting that has been made recently has opened a new source of revenue to anyone willing to sacrifice a little of his cuticle for a consideration. Good, healthy specimens of humanity are all
that the surgeons demand, and when these have been found willing to bare their arms to the glistening knife a bargain can readily be struck, says the Chicago Record-Herald.
The operation was performed recently at the Presbyterian Hospital of grafting the skin of a healthy young German onto the abdomen of a Joliet
manufacturer who had been scalded while superintending some work in one of the departments of his factory. A professional skin seller was called in
as soon as the patient arrived at the hospital and asked if he wished to sell the required amount of cuticle. The man, who was a young German named John Baumann, living conveniently near the hospital, signified his willingness, and his arm was bared and prepared for the operation.
After it had been carefully washed and covered with an antiseptic solution a strip of skin six inches long and one inch wide was swiftly removed by the attending surgeon. This was quickly transferred to the wound while the skin seller's other arm was being prepared by an internist for the removal of another strip of the same size.
While the surgeon was busy putting the finishing touches on the job of grafting the skin to accommodate itself
to its new resting place the internist was busy binding up the two red, bare looking strips on the young German's arm. In a few moments he had resumed his coat and hat, pocketed his check from the surgeon and left the hospital.
"I like the work, if you call it work,"
he said after reaching the sidewalk,
"and I intend to follow it as a regular profession as long as there is a demand for good, healthy skin. I am known to a number of physicians operating in the group of hospitals in this neighborhood, and they keep me busy. Frequently I give up as much as twenty-four inches of skin in one day. Then, of course, I have to rest quietly for a week or two until it grows on again."
"I usually get from $3 to $5 a square inch for my skin. For that job today, requiring twelve square inches, I received $60—not so bad for fifteen minutes' work. I always get pretty near what I ask, as the surgeons have discovered that my skin produces good results when used for grafting purposes.
So I usually have as much work as I can attend to."
Wonderful Welsh Whisky.
Mr. Lloyd George has informed the House of Commons that the only distillery set up in Wales has been closed, which, from the poetical point of view, only is a matter for regret.
Some years ago, writes a correspondent, I visited this establishment and found there quite a big brewing of the "crature," or the Welsh equivalent for the same. But what amused me was a document I came across some time afterward in which Welsh whisky was lauded to the skies in the following terms:
"Welsh whisky is the most wonderful whisky that ever drove the skeleton from the feast or painted landscapes in the brain of man. It is the mingled souls of peat and barley washed white with the waters of the Trenton. In it you will find the sunshine and shadow that chased each other over the billowy fields, the breath of June, the carol of the lark,
the dew of night, the wealth of summer, and autumn's rich content, all golden with imprisoned light."—[Lon-

Mummies for Fuel.
"I have eaten mutton cooked on a fire of broken mummy," said the sailor. "It was a Egyptian, and the mummy was stolen out of a tomb. Them natives is always stealin' mummies. They sell them in pieces to tourists, and what piece they can't dispose of otherwise they throw into the bin for fuel."
Mummy burns like tinder, but it's a ghastly fuel. It is as ghastly a fuel as the shoe lasts what they burn in the shoemakin' town of Lynn, where
the old-fashioned and discarded lasts, glowin' in the grate, look to you like amputated human limbs.
"I been in tannery towns where the fuel is leather chips. This fuel smells and smokes. It clinkers, too, formin' hearts into big, solid chunks what have to be broke up with the poker every little while."
"In British Columbia, where fish is as plentiful as air, they burn dried fish when there's no wood handy. The oil in the fish causes them to burn
well, but the smell of this fish fuel
ain't to no white man's taste."—[Wash-

Lesson in Politeness.
Three sailors rioted out in full uniform gave a North Nineteenth-street car a lesson in politeness a couple of nights ago that they are not likely to forget for a long time. The sailors must have boarded the car far downtown.
When it reached the theater district
the seats were taken, and they possibly got up and yielded their places
to three women who were standing.
At the next block five more women got up, although there were fully fifty men seated, not one offered to yield his seat. This enraged the sailors, and they requested two men to get up. The men addressed refused and the sailors landed on them and chased them out to the back platform in quick order. Then the sailors gave the seats to two of the women and promoted to make vacancies for the rest. The other men appealed to arose with alacrity and all the women were somewhat. The sailors continued to find seats for all corners of the female passenger until they got off at Dauphin street, but after the first scuffles they had no trouble, the men yielding as soon as appealed to, and some more.—[Philadelphia Record.

PASADENA.
WILL FOLLOW
BAND TO SEA.TWELVE THOUSAND EXPECTED TO ATTEND PICNIC.

Long Beach Musicians Stir Up Enthusiasm in Crown City for the Big Outing—Council Will Act on Arroyo Seco Bridge Matter This Morning—Water Problem Next.

Stees of The Times, No. 26 S. Raymond Ave. PASADENA, Aug. 11.—Everything is in readiness for the big Pasadena day picnic which will be held tomorrow at Long Beach. The band from that city paraded the streets yesterday afternoon in the interest of the picnic, and started the enthusiasm for the big event. An extra clerk was kept busy at the Board of Trade office yesterday selling tickets. An estimate made late last night on the number who will go was 12,000.

Prizes to be awarded winners of the various events were exhibited at the Board of Trade rooms yesterday. It is said a number of events will be pulled off at the place mentioned in the official programme. A report was started yesterday afternoon that Harry Geoghegan, the genial president of the Board of Trade, will give an exhibition in high diving. Asked about it he said: "Yes, I am billed for several leading stunts. I presume I will be to make the high dive as well as the fat man's race, the oldest man's race, and do the strong man's turn. I do not know where I will make the dive, but I want to make it from the highest point around Long Beach. Of course, I want to make it where there is a large crowd so I will have a nice, soft place to alight."

Regarding the report that the Board of Trade will take along a goodly supply of Pasadena wine (large jug) for advertising purposes in and around Long Beach, President Geoghegan stated that every effort will be made to get the wine to Pasadena all night long, and so far as he knew there was not enough available at the present time (just before the picnic season) to do any good at Long Beach.

Anyway, the hint was given out yesterday, which orders to pass it along, that there are plenty of jugs for all, from the youngest to the oldest. In addition to the large numbers who will go by the Pacific Electric cars several thousand will travel on automobiles. The company has promised an abundance of cars, so that no one will have to stand.

FOR THE BRIDGE.
The directors of the Board of Trade met last night to receive the special report from the Bridge Committee. Strong resolutions were adopted, addressed to the Mayor and City Council, asking that the compromise bridge as proposed by Williams & Nishkan, and agreed to by the committee, be adopted, and that the city should be made to rush the matter through. The recommendations will be delivered to Mayor Earley, they can be acted on at the Council meeting this morning. Mayor Earley said last night: "I think we will act on them at once. Of course, the city will have to do it to call on the supervisors and see what they will do in the matter. I will support their plan, but I will not support the general plan before any action is taken. At any rate, we will do everything possible to rush matters along as fast as possible. The bridge is certainly needed, and I hope the people will act for the bonds whenever they are put up."

WANTS A FREE HAND.
Official announcements were mailed yesterday to the members of the Special Water Committee, consisting of eighteen prominent business men, calling a meeting at the Board of Trade on Friday night for the purpose of organizing and getting ready for business. It is believed that, regardless of the resolutions adopted by the directors of the Board of Trade, President Geoghegan will insist that the special committee be given a free hand to go ahead and do whatever the majority decides is for the best and that no one will refuse to act as chairman. He will insist that the committee name some one. The business section of the three men who refused to act will reconsider their action and will give.

A quiet canvass among many business men yesterday afternoon elicited the information that such an arrangement will be made. The business section of the three men who refused to act will reconsider their action and will give.

CAMP MEETING ON CAMPUS.
The annual camp meeting of the Church of the Nazarene of Southern California will be opened today on the camp meeting grounds which are located on the new college campus at the Hughes ranch on East Washington street and Hill avenue. The services will be conducted by Rev. C. B. Johnson of Oklahoma, assisted by a number of ministers. A number of tents have been erected for the purpose of accommodating those who live outside of Pasadena. The meetings will be well in a large tent.

The old buildings on the grounds have been remodeled and will be used for the college. The call term will open September 19 under the direction of Miss Cora G. Snyder.

Rev. Kittredge Whelan delivered the second of his series of illustrated lectures on the Holy Land at the First Baptist Church last night, to a large and appreciative audience. The pictures were reproductions of photographs taken by Dr. Wheeler first.

The Baraca Boys of the First Congregational Church were given a "warmer feed" at the home of Harold Linney, No. 61 South Los Robles avenue, last night. The business section was out last night in order that the boys might diminish the great pile of automobiles placed on long rows of piles on the lawn, which was illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

MOONLIGHT PICNIC.
The young people of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church held a delightful moonlight picnic last night at Eastlake Park.

A society event of yesterday afternoon was a tea given by Mrs. Wallace Goddard, of No. 34 North Michigan avenue, to the members of the University Bridge Club. Present were Mrs. Neil K. Taylor, Lizzie Smith, Charles Woodbury, A. E. New-bomb, Leroy Henderson, Herbert Holt, John Hatfield, Earl Nash, Helena Fitzgibbon, Misses Jessie Farley, Alice Earley, Ellen Lowry, Mattie Stratton, Florence Doolittle.

Of course, the city will have to do it to call on the supervisors and see what they will do in the matter. I will support their plan, but I will not support the general plan before any action is taken. At any rate, we will do everything possible to rush matters along as fast as possible. The bridge is certainly needed, and I hope the people will act for the bonds whenever they are put up."

WANTS A FREE HAND.
Official announcements were mailed yesterday to the members of the Special Water Committee, consisting of eighteen prominent business men, calling a meeting at the Board of Trade on Friday night for the purpose of organizing and getting ready for business. It is believed that, regardless of the resolutions adopted by the directors of the Board of Trade, President Geoghegan will insist that the special committee be given a free hand to go ahead and do whatever the majority decides is for the best and that no one will refuse to act as chairman. He will insist that the committee name some one. The business section of the three men who refused to act will reconsider their action and will give.

A quiet canvass among many business men yesterday afternoon elicited the information that such an arrangement will be made. The business section of the three men who refused to act will reconsider their action and will give.

CAMP MEETING ON CAMPUS.
The annual camp meeting of the Church of the Nazarene of Southern California will be opened today on the camp meeting grounds which are located on the new college campus at the Hughes ranch on East Washington street and Hill avenue. The services will be conducted by Rev. C. B. Johnson of Oklahoma, assisted by a number of ministers. A number of tents have been erected for the purpose of accommodating those who live outside of Pasadena. The meetings will be well in a large tent.

The old buildings on the grounds have been remodeled and will be used for the college. The call term will open September 19 under the direction of Miss Cora G. Snyder.

Rev. Kittredge Whelan delivered the second of his series of illustrated lectures on the Holy Land at the First Baptist Church last night, to a large and appreciative audience. The pictures were reproductions of photographs taken by Dr. Wheeler first.

The Baraca Boys of the First Congregational Church were given a "warmer feed" at the home of Harold Linney, No. 61 South Los Robles avenue, last night. The business section was out last night in order that the boys might diminish the great pile of automobiles placed on long rows of piles on the lawn, which was illuminated with Japanese lanterns.

MOONLIGHT PICNIC.
The young people of the Pasadena Presbyterian Church held a delightful moonlight picnic last night at Eastlake Park.

A society event of yesterday afternoon was a tea given by Mrs. Wallace Goddard, of No. 34 North Michigan avenue, to the members of the University Bridge Club. Present were Mrs. Neil K. Taylor, Lizzie Smith, Charles Woodbury, A. E. New-was no intention of attacking any titles on beach property where there was improvement. All that he wanted was to establish a line in front of the bathhouse and strand company's holdings and have it understood and agreed that the latter would make any claim to the property south of it. Lawyers present assured property owners there was no danger, as the Supreme Court has passed upon a tide line question many times, and each time has been in favor of the abutting property owner being entitled to all accretions of the beach to him. If, on the other hand, the ocean takes away any of his property he has no redress. They also said that a meander line along a water front is not a permanent line, and has never been so construed by the government, but is simply surveyed for the purposes of sale.

Charles R. Drake, head of the bathhouse company, said his people were absolutely sure of their title, as it had been investigated in a way that through the best lawyers of the State. What he did not understand was the fender. The boys had traveled in between the fender and the cow-catcher, while the train was standing in the yards at the Hill-street station. They wanted to see the ocean, and decided that the only way to get to the beach was to beat their way, and that the only way to accomplish that was to ride on the cow-catcher. They gave the name of Leonard McLaughlin and Ladora Trappin. They were covered from top to toe with grease and dirt, and said they had not enjoyed the ride.

The boys had been seen by employees of the road as the train passed Vineyard. Their presence on the train in a perilous position, telephone wires ahead, and when the car stopped at Palms the lads were rescued. They were brought to this beach and turned over to the police, who, in turn, sent them to Los Angeles.

SON OF COALINGA CAPITALIST
DIES MYSTERIOUSLY.

Stepmother Thinks Demise Was Accidental—Merchant Harassed by Creditors Shoots Himself and Three Men Decline to Go to His Aid, Fearing Bullets.

LONG BEACH, Aug. 11.—Considerable mystery surrounds the death this afternoon by shooting of Thomas C. McBride, aged 35, son of J. L. McBride, a wealthy oil man of Coalinga, summer here, as for several years past. The body of young McBride was found at 5 o'clock p.m. in a dark room of the flat at the Cynthia apartments. It was in a sitting position, a couch, the head backed up with pillows. Beside him lay an automatic revolver and several 32-caliber cartridges. The lad had been shot through the heart, and death was probably instantaneous.

Major Windham acted as go-between this morning in carrying to John P. Craig of the ship plant a petition from the union strikers asking for concessions. Mr. Craig replied that he considered the demands as coming from the San Francisco unions and declined to consider them, although he was willing to consider requests from his own workmen. The demands were that all former employees be reinstated, that pay for lost time be granted, that all men in thirty days; that all increases in wages be granted as asked; that there be formal recognition of the union; and that the employer be required to make San Pedro a port of call in a short time.

IS ANXIOUS FOR THE MONEY.
Santa Monica City Council Will Sue Indemnity Company Which Wrote Bond of Absconder.

SANTA MONICA, Aug. 11.—Where is Bane? That question has worried the City Council ever since the City Treasurer and Tax Collector skipped out last May, taking with them about $25,000 of the city's money. Now that the fiscal year is at an end and the tax levy is about to be made for the year, the Council is beginning to ask, "What is the Aetna Indemnity company doing? Has it paid the bond?" The Aetna wrote Ralph Bane's bond in the sum of $25,000, and up to this time has made no move to indicate that it is about to settle the obligation. Mayor Dudley last night recommended to the City Council that the City Attorney be instructed to take steps to force the collection of the bond, and the Council acted on the recommendation.

Former Councilman Abraham Reel declares upon his best knowledge and belief that he recently saw the absconder Ralph Bane, who was at the time riding without disguise in an automobile on the San Fernando road near Burbank. Reel says he could not have deceived him, as an corroborative evidence, he said O. C. Ford was present at the time and also recognized Bane.

When the Treasurer left the city a reward was offered for his capture and circulars carrying a photograph of his face were sent broadcast throughout the country. Bane was supposed to have gone to Honduras, a country known to have been making a study of the maps and treaty provisions between the United States and the Latin American Republics. But not all of the Santa Monica believe he went far. Many hold to the belief that he is still in California.

MOONLIGHT FETE.
The pretty gardens surrounding the Schofield home on the South Fourth-street hill will be the scene Wednesday evening of one of the most elaborate and beautiful garden fete ever attempted along the shores of Santa Monica Bay. The affair will be conducted under the auspices of the members of the Crescent Bay Women's Club, and will consist of a reproduction of the romantic portions of "A Midsummer Night's Dream." As the opening overture of the strains are brought to a close, from behind every bush and tree of the lawn will skip fairies and elves, in impersonation of the characters in "Nymphidia," dancing to music composed to fit the different scenes. This portion of the production includes also the Mummer play of Pyramus and Thisbe, portraying in contrast the rude and clumsy attempt of the Muthmers to comprehend the tragedy either as to form or sentiment. The contrast will show only the more clearly and impressively the exquisite poetry and dainty grace of the fairy play.

TOO SKITTISH.
DEATH DUE TO
LIVELY HORSE.VISITOR FROM ILLINOIS DIES AT POMONA.

She With Three Women Friends Went Out Driving, Made Lively: Man Substituted Frisky Dobbin for Sedate Animal and Spirited Creature Threw Them Out of Rig.

POMONA, Aug. 11.—Miss Catherine Rubel of Freeport, Ill., a guest of Mrs. Edith J. Wood of this city, died last night at the home of the latter from injuries received when a horse which was taken out for a Sunday night with a driving party of four women, caused fatal injuries to one and slight injuries to the other three.

Miss W. Z. Bolet of Rockford, Ill., Miss Catherine Rubel, Mrs. Edith J. Wood and her daughter, Miss Norma Wood, were all thrown from a surrey when the skittish horse which they were driving took fright at some object in Live Oak Canyon and ran away. Miss Rubel received a basal fracture of the skull, Miss Bolet suffered a sprained ankle, bruises of the body and possible internal injuries. Mrs. Wood and her daughter were badly scratched and suffered from shock. The two seriously injured women were rushed to the home of their hostess and emergency doctors called to their aid.

Mrs. Wood and her daughter were badly scratched and suffered from shock. The two seriously injured women were rushed to the home of their hostess and emergency doctors called to their aid.

When the animal became frightened in the canyon it dashed down the trail at a fearful rate, and the surrey became unmanageable. The women were thrown out of the rig, and the animal was driven through the air.

First at New Wharf.
Lumber-Laden Steamer Docks at Miner Fill in the Outer Harbor of San Pedro.

SAN PEDRO, Aug. 11.—The steamer Shasta, Capt. Hansen, owned by the E. K. Wood Lumber Company, which arrived this morning from Portland, had the distinction of being the first vessel to dock at the new concrete wharf, built by the Outer Harbor Dock and Warehouse Company, popularly known as the "new wharf" in the outer harbor. There is a depth of thirty feet of water at mean low tide at this wharf as against a depth of twenty-five feet along the wharves on the inner harbor. It is expected that much foreign business will pass over the new wharf, which is modern in every regard, as well as the business of the Alaskan Hawaiian Steamship Company, whose steamer is expected to make San Pedro a port of call in a short time.

DIES AFTER SHORT ILLNESS.
Wife of the Mayor of Monrovia Passes Away Unexpectedly and Will Be Buried Tomorrow.

MONROVIA, Aug. 11.—Mrs. W. B. Scarborough, wife of Mayor Scarborough of this city, died unexpectedly this morning after an illness of only a few hours. For years she was in delicate health, but no fears were entertained as to her immediate condition. The cause of death was heart disease. Mrs. Scarborough was a devoted member of the First Baptist Church and also took an active interest in the Saturday Afternoon Woman's Club.

COTTON MAN GOES EAST.
DUARTE, Aug. 11.—Joseph R. Loftus, promoter of Imperial Valley cotton culture, left here tonight for an extended business tour of the South and East. He has purchased a large tract in this vicinity and makes his home on Mountain View avenue on Burbank. Reel says he could not have deceived him, as an corroborative evidence, he said O. C. Ford was present at the time and also recognized Bane.

The architecture is mission style.

After Beating Up Old Resident of Bryn Mawr Desperate Mexican Engaged in Pistol Duel With Officer, Then Runs Away and Manages to Elude Pursuers.

REDLANDS, Aug. 12.—Manuel Espanosa is wanted by the police for attempted murder. He is being sought all over the orange belt by posse.

Constable Heblack was notified last evening that Espanosa was beating up an old Mexican resident of Bryn Mawr, west of the city. He hurried to the place, but Espanosa had departed. The officer searched for the man, and located him on the main street of the little suburban town.

Espanosa pulled a gun and fired several times at the officer, none of the shots taking effect. Constable Heblack returned the fire and the Mexican dropped to the ground. When the officer approached him Espanosa jumped up and ran away. Later in the evening he was again located with a number of friends, who made an effort to arrest him. The officer again chased to the desperate Mexican.

Cheese Withstands Age.

Newspapers report that in the Alps region of the Swiss cantons of Vaud and Valais cheesemakers will use their products for years. They claim that cheese improves with age.

At Los Ormones, in the canton of Vaud, it is customary to make special cheese for certain family feasts. They are tagged with explanatory labels and eaten several years later at other feasts, or even at funerals. Often such cheese is bequeathed from one generation to another as family souvenirs.

One cheese, at Los Ormones, in a conical shape, was discovered in 1788. It was as good as new, and had to be cut with a saw. It is reported to have lasted good—scientific American.

THE DUMPLING.

NEW POLICY IN GERMANY.

A STRONG MAN AT HEAD OF THE FOREIGN OFFICE.

Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter, Who Assumes Office in August, Has Been in Midst of Most of the Diplomatic Work of Germany for More Than a Decade.

Politicians will never forget a certain debate in the Reichstag while Germany was yet in the tumult of the "Kaiser crisis," during which a florid, burly man rose from the government bench, says the Berlin correspondent of the London Daily Mail.

He wore a waistcoat of bright yellow. Tense with emotions engendered by an afternoon of warm debate, both House and galleries welcomed a patch of color amid the somberness of the hour.

During the preceding debate replete with criticism had been hurled at the conduct of the Foreign Office. It was to defend the department from charges of incompetence that this new speaker had taken the floor. "The Foreign Office," he began, "is hopelessly understaffed. We are handling four times as many documents as ever before. I will match our zealous personnel against that of any Foreign Office in the world." He got no further. The House rocked with delight. The speaker, however, was not lost in hilarity. The "man with the yellow waistcoat"—as he was destined henceforth to be known—restrained his completely laughed down. To many his identity was unknown, but whoever he was, his career was considered closed.

He was a zealous, personable, and completely laughed down. To many his identity was unknown, but whoever he was, his career was considered closed.

Herr Alfred von Kiderlen-Wachter, who has just been called to the helm of Germany's external affairs as Foreign Secretary, summoned to service temporarily during the outbreak of feeling with regard to the "Kaiser interview," he found himself pushed to the breach at a critical moment, to discover that his oratorical powers were equal to the emergency.

A VIGOROUS TEMPERAMENT.

Europe would err grievously in judging Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter from his maiden effort in the Reichstag. Fifty-eight, and a bachelor, this Wartburg diplomatist combines with his South German joviality an extremely forceful temperament, which is destined to make itself felt unmistakably in the Weimar of the coming months. For ten years Von Kiderlen simply has held the relatively unimportant post of Minister to Roumania. From that point of view, however, he has surveyed the development of affairs in the Balkans and the Near East, and has been a vigilant outpost of Germany's vaulting ambitions in those regions of possibility. The appointment as Foreign Secretary of the man who ranks as Germany's finest expert on Near Eastern conditions is a factor not wholly devoid of significance for future events. Whenever it has been necessary for Baron Marquard von Biebertstein, Germany's astute Ambassador at the Golden Horn, to leave Constantinople, Von Kiderlen-Wachter has been appointed to his deputy.

In the spring of 1909, when Austria-Hungary and Germany were bidding for Baron Marquard von Biebertstein, the late Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter, still acting as Foreign Secretary at Berlin, who held the reins of Germany's diplomatic and diplomatic policy which coerced Russia into sudden recognition of the Bosnian annexation under penalty of war. Count Aehrenthal and Prince Bismarck reaped the public laurels of that ominous triumph of German diplomacy. But when it comes to the history of the Kaiser's reign, Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter will be given the real credit.

After serving through the Franco-Prussian war as a volunteer Herr von Kiderlen-Wachter entered the diplomatic service during the heyday of the Bismarck regime, when the influence of the Kaiser's personal secretaries of German foreign policy, the late Herr von Holstein, was paramount. Between Von Holstein, Prince Philip zu Eulenburg, the failed Kaiser's round table, and Von Kiderlen-Wachter an intimate friendship existed. Kladderadatsch, the comic weekly, never tired of comparing the Kaiser to the victor is known to this day.

In the early eighties Von Kiderlen-Wachter spent three years as secretary at the German Embassy in Petroburg, and was then stationed for two years in Paris and Constantinople. He first came under the eye of the Kaiser when he accompanied the Emperor on his journey to the Danube in 1888. Von Kiderlen-Wachter accompanied the Emperor on his journey to the Danube in 1888. Von Kiderlen-Wachter accompanied the Emperor on his journey to the Danube in 1888.

ELECTRICS ARE ECONOMICAL.

Locomotives Require Less Repairs Than Do Those Propelled by Steam.

[But Evening News.] For all their giant size, their mighty puffing and blowing, the great steam locomotives which haul our trains today are as delicate as a blooded race horse when it comes to repairs. After every trip they must be carefully stalled and cleaned, must be repaired and oiled, must be repainted and polished.

Not so with the new electric locomotives, the most powerful engines in the world. At 2 o'clock in the morning of March 1 last an avalanche carried three of the new electric locomotives on the Great Northern Railroad into a deep canyon near the Cascade tunnel.

For fifteen days nothing was done to recover these locomotives, and they lay buried out of sight in the snow and ice. By the 21st actual preparation for raising the locomotives was begun. On April they were all back on the track, and except for minor repairs and a thorough drying, were ready to resume their old runs at shuttling trains back and forth through the Cascade tunnel.

Two steam locomotives were also caught in the avalanche, and were buried down into the narrow cañon to almost complete destruction. They had to be sent back to the factory and completely rebuilt.

The three electric locomotives were hauled up the side of the cañon by steel cables, dragged over the frozen ground and when placed on their trucks on the rails looked little the worse for their unusual venture.

The repairs necessary for each locomotive were slight and $100 per locomotive easily replaced all the damaged electrical equipment. The locomotives are made entirely of steel and did not suffer much from the rough handling or from being buried so long in the snow. By May 6 the transmission work was repaired and the locomotives were back at their old task.

ABOUT YOUR OWN FIRST NAME.

Its Origin and the Famous Folk Who Have Borne It.

GERALD.
GERTRUDE.

Peaceful bearers of the famous spear names. The Teutonic warrior Gernot and the Val-kyrie maiden, Gerdrud, were the forerunners of the Gerards, Geraldine, Gertrudes, and Geraldines of later times. Gerald Lake, Indian conqueror, one warlike bearer of the name. The founder of an order of knights, and the founder of a brotherhood. A man named Gerard in Latin and in Greek.

BY FRANCES MARSHALL.

Gerard, Gerald, Garrett, Gertrude and Geraldine are spear names and come from the long-ago times when a man and a woman, too, must fight for life and safety. The bearers of the earliest forms of these names were, as their names suggest, true spear-men and spear-maidens. Gernot was a bold Teutonic warrior and Gerdrud was one of the Valkyrie maidens of Teutonic mythology. But the famous men and women of the names in historic times have with a few exceptions won their way to fame along peaceful paths.

There have been a few exceptions. The Gerard Lake, the popular English commander, who took Delhi, in India, to keep up the tradition of the first war-like Gernot and pugnacious Gerdrud. But against these few are arrayed an ever-increasing group of peaceful saints and churchmen, poets, scholars, scholars, reformers, singers, actresses, writers, philanthropists and statesmen.

In 1464 at Rotterdam, in the Netherlands, was born perhaps the greatest of all the spear-men of peace. He was called Desiderius Erasmus, two names supposed to be the Latin and the Greek equivalents for Gerard, his father's name.

Delicate throughout his life of 70 years, and forced to wear a corset, he was a frail body, poor, and sometimes persecuted by his literary enemies. Erasmus, as he is generally known, rose to be one of the foremost scholars of his age. So bent was he on study that he used to buy "Greek books first and clothes afterward." In search of learning he traveled Europe from end to end, and became acquainted with the most prominent men of England, Germany, France, Italy and Holland.

In his youth Erasmus was for a short time a tutor to a nobleman among them the son of James IV of Scotland—and for a time he held a chair at Cambridge. As he refused to accept pay from poor students, he did not make his professorship a very profitable business, and anyway he did not like teaching, so according to the custom of his day, he allowed his friends to support him. He used to receive a large purse of money given by wealthy ecclesiastics and statesmen.

Erasmus felt no false pride about accepting these gifts; indeed, he used to send a horseman on errands for the printing press he helped manage at Basel, with instructions to stop on his way back and see what Cardinal Borgia and Lord Gale-and-that-had-in-way-of-donations-and-gifts. He was not so very economical, either, with his gift money. His delicate constitution made it necessary for him to have certain kinds of food and wine, and as he could not stand the iron gives usual for heating he always had to have porcelain stoves or open fires put in the rooms where he worked. Then, too, he did not like to travel alone, and had to go to the three expenses of a courier and extra horse.

Nevertheless, he was well liked, and was one of the really important men of his day. The earliest of these Geraldine and Gertrude of the name—Geraldine, a daughter of one of the early Frankish chiefs, Pepin of Baden. She is brought up in her father's palace, almost from her birth determined to take the veil. Although she was sought by many suitors among them King Dagobert I—she kept to her childhood pledge and contrary to a rumour which her father had built for at Nivelles in Brabant. In the year when she was twenty years old, she became an abbess, and spent the rest of her life in the nunnery.

Gertrude was a gentle saint, and although subjected herself to a hard life she comforted the poor, and took care of the poor. So her memory was greatly loved by the monks, and her name did not need the additional note which three or four earlier saints gave it to become one of the most popular in early France and Germany.

Little after St. Gertrude's death were founded an Anglo-Saxon Saint Erhold, who did for the name Geraldine the gentle abbess of Nivelles did for Gertrude. Gerald became a monk in Ireland, and the name of his range legends told about his life and work. One is that he, with three hundred other monks, was turned out of a convent where they had taken refuge, by the wife of King Caomhan of Connaught, and that Gerhold and all the monks were driven to the sea, where they were rescued by a boat. Gerhold's reference to deliver Ireland from King as Caomhan. Gerhold died in a few centuries later there lived two famous Geraldine, Gerard Tunc and Gertrude, who founded what in their day were two powerful organizations, each of them organizations which worked for harmony and peace. Tunc was Italian, born at Anagni in 1048; he was Dutch, born at Dordrecht in 1070, probably a merchant—and a very worldly one at that. It is said that he was at Jerusalem some time at the end of the eleventh century. He became guardian of the hospital, or inn for travelers, which existed there, and in the crusades arrived at Jerusalem he was thrown into prison on suspicion of favoring their project. After his victory he was released. He had undergone some change of heart, it is supposed, during his imprisonment. At the time of his release, he was set about founding the order of the Knights Hospitallers of St. John of Malta, an order which bound its members to holy service under the cross, chastity, poverty and obedience. The knights of Malta were supposed to go out the world trying to relieve all Christians in distress, and for a long time the order was powerful.

Gertrude was a persevering scholar, but at the time he was 34 he lived a somewhat indulgent and selfish life. In, according to his biographers, he had a serious illness, and like Tunc his prison cell, underwent a change of purpose. The next five years Gertrude spent at his time in visiting monasteries, and after that he became a missionary, and went back to his home in Holland. There he met with unusual success. Thomas A. Kempson, one of the young men who came to his influence and training, said that the people left their meals and business to hear him speak, and the churches were not large enough to hold the crowds that flocked to hear him. Groot was a translator, and with a friend he gathered together some young men to copy manuscripts. Finally they decided to put their earnings in a common fund, and live together according to a certain rule. This started the order of the Brothers of the Common Life, with Groot at its head. One of the aims of the order was that the brothers were to earn, not beg, their daily bread, and for this purpose they pursued all sorts of handicrafts. With his private estate Groot endowed an order of sisters who did spinning and weaving and embroidery. The orders grew in numbers and influence, but at the time of the reformation they died out.

Gertrude of Canterbury, who died in 1170, an English chronicler; Gerard of Cremona, who died in 1187, a medieval translator, and Geraldus Cambrensis, or de Barri, born in 1147 of a royal Welsh family, who at his own request was appointed legate to the Welsh so that he might communicate all who refused to pay their tithes of wool and cheese, and who boasts that the Irish were moved to melting tears when they heard his Latin sermons—which they could not understand—are other prominent medieval spear-men of the church.

Gerard Dow, or Dou, born in 1413, whose father was a glazier, and who was himself the foremost of the so-called "Little Dutchmen," or general painters; Gertrude de Nervay, French literature, born in 1586, who was most of the time so poor that he had no house to live in, but who nevertheless managed to pay for the study of the curious-old pictures, china, etc., which it was his hobby to collect; Gertrude Smith, born in 1797, famous abolitionist and philanthropist, who distributed to the poor the fortune which his father had won with John Jacob Astor and the Erie Railroad; Gerardus Bloeck, popular poet, whose father and mother fled from Dresden to this country after the troubles of 1848; Geraldine Farrar, grand opera singer; Gertrude Elliott, popular actress, wife of Forbes Robertson and sister of Maxine Elliott and Gertrude Atherton, American-born novelist who lives at Stratford-on-Avon.

Gertrude means Gerard; Gerald, Gerard, Gertrude and Geraldine mean spear-firm. [Copyright, 1933, by Frances Marshall.] Miss Marshall will be pleased to answer by mail all inquiries addressed to her concerning the origin and history of first names. In addressing Miss Marshall in care of this paper please enclose a stamped and self-addressed envelope for the reply.

ALASKA'S RICHEST DOG.
Has a Gold-Studded Collar Because of Having Rescued a Freezing Man.

[Our Dumb Animals:] There is a man at Nome whose town residence is near the Congregational parsonage, and whom I found to be a good neighbor. Although he never came to hear me preach he was and is a well-known friend of the defenseless. He is an ardent member of the Alaskan club, and a very good friend of the friend of the dogs, who are also very fond of him.

His own dogs, of whom he has several, are fed on the best the market affords, and sleep at night on beds furnished with mattresses. His favorite dog is a large, white, and very friendly dog known as Billy, who has earned the right of freedom from toll and achieved a reputation for saving the lives of numerous miners who were lost in arctic blizzards.

On one occasion he was piloting his master and a companion to their cabin in the mountains. The companion was confident that the dog was mis-leading them, and kicking the intelligent brute, struck out in an opposite direction. The master, though equally confident, trusted in his dumb and faithful guide, who soon led him to his cabin. Whereupon, having seen his master safe and comfortable, he turned his back on the man who had secured his kind offices with a brutal kick, and contrary to that reverence which too often appears in human requitals, soon brought the freezing man to the warm cabin, and laid him down, content with having performed a humane act.

But the rescued man, whose life had been saved by the dog, was not content with the great half-human, though half-wolf dog, wanting to make some amends for his own indifference and unkindness, had made for the noble animal a beautiful collar studded with gold nuggets. This unique collar, such a probably no other dog ever possessed, is in the safety deposit vaults of one of the Nome banks, where Billy has a bank account and the distinction of being the wealthiest dog in his own name in existence, and which deposit, his master says, will never be disturbed until he is used to give Billy an honored burial for his magnanimous and life-saving deeds.

Length of a Meter.
For scientific principles it is necessary that there shall be some way of determining with exactness the length of the standard meter. Every measurement from the plane to a yard of gingham must come under that standard. It remained for Prof. Albert Graham Michelson of the faculty of Clark University to recently find out the length of the X-rays in that meter. Prof. Michelson was last month awarded the Nobel prize of $37,000 for his achievement in optical spectroscopy, and his possibilities of measurement by the use of light rays. In plain facts, it was found that by stringing 1,500,000 light rays together he could get a meter.—Baltimore American.

Senator Bacon's Vagary.
Just why Senator Bacon of Georgia never votes when his name is reached on the roll call is a bit of Senatorial mystery. The Georgia senator, it is true, is and is present at as many roll calls as any man in the Senate, but he never votes until everybody else is through. Then the Georgia Senator rises, addresses the chair, waits for his name to be distinctly called out by the clerk, and when this is done he votes, he allows his sentiments to be recorded.

There are plenty of Senators who come into the chamber after their names have been passed on the list, necessarily having to wait until the roll is through, but Senator Bacon is the only member who sits in the chamber and permits his name to be called and passed during a roll call without a response.—Washington Times.

William Morrison, station agent and business man of Lincoln, Del., who claims practical results to prove his assertion. Morrison has a large plum tree in front of his house which is supposed to be about twenty-five years old. For years the tree has borne but few plums, never over one or two quarts.

A faithful believer in calomel for the ill of man, Morrison determined to try his favorite remedy on the tree, and last fall bored a hole in the tree and into this hole inserted a spoonful of the medicine, and then plugged the hole up tight. The result has been wonderful, and the tree that hardly bore enough plums to give it a name has several hundred quarts of fruits now ripening on its limbs. So pleased is Morrison with the effect of his treatment that he will now begin a regular course of medicine to revive the aged and decaying tree.

Horse Raises a Mustache.
Although from time immemorial Washington horses have worn smooth upper lips, a livery horse that makes its home in a stable on Seventh street near the Southern Railway tracks seeks to set a new fashion in facial adornment and has grown a silky mustache, several inches in length and curling up at the ends much after the fashion of the German Emperor. It gives the animal a look half-natty, half-comical appearance. The horse is owned by a livery stable on Seventh street. The mustache is said to have been noticed by a passerby who reported it to the police. The police then sent a man to the stable to see the horse. The man found the horse and took a picture of the mustache. The picture was then shown to the public. The horse is now a sight to be seen.
